Chapter VI Habit 73 Chapter VII Memory 99 Chapter VIII Thinking 120 Chapter IX Individual Differences 138 Chapter X Applied Psychology 159 ALPHABETICAL LIST OF REFERENCES 168 Glossary 169 AUTHOR S PREFACE This book is written for young students in high schools and normal schools No knowledge can be of more use to a young person than a knowledge of himself no study can be more valuable to him than a study of himself A study of the laws of human behavior that is the purpose of this book What is human nature like Why do we act as we do How can we make ourselves different How can we make others different How can we make ourselves more efficient How can we make our lives more worth while This book is a manual intended to help young people to obtain such knowledge of human nature as will enable them to answer these questions I have not attempted to write a complete text on psychology There are already many such books and good ones too I have selected for treatment only such topics as young students can study with interest and profit I have tried to keep in mind all the time the practical worth of the matters discussed and the ability and experience of the intended readers TO THE TEACHER This book can be only a guide to you You are to help your students study human nature You must to some extent be a psychologist yourself before you can teach psychology You must yourself be a close and scientific student of human nature Develop in the students the spirit of inquiry and investigation Teach them to look to their own minds and their neighbors actions for verification of the statements of the text Let the students solve by observation and experiment the questions and problems raised in the text and the exercises The exercises should prove to be the most valuable part of the book The first two chapters are the most difficult but ought to be read before the rest of the book is studied If you think best merely read these two chapters with the pupils and after the book is finished come back to them for careful study In the references I have given parallel readings for the most part to Titchener Pillsbury and Münsterberg I have purposely limited the references partly because a library will not be available to many who may use the book and partly because the young student is likely to be confused by much reading from different sources before he has worked out some sort of system and a point of view of his own Only the most capable members of a high school class will be able to profit much from the references given TO THE STUDENT You are beginning the study of human nature You can not study human nature from a book you must study yourself and your neighbors This book may help you to know what to look for and to understand what you find but it can do little more than this It is true this text gives you many facts learned by psychologists but you must verify the statements or at least see their significance to you or they will be of no worth to you However the facts considered here properly understood and assimilated ought to prove of great value to you But perhaps of greater value will be the psychological frame of mind or attitude which you should acquire The psychological attitude is that of seeking to find and understand the causes of human action and the causes consequences and significance of the processes of the human mind If your first course in psychology teaches you to look for these things gives you some skill in finding them and in using the knowledge after you have it your study should be quite worth while W H PYLE The Nature of Psychology Kenneth J. The Nature of Intelligence L.L Thurstone,2013-11-05 First published in 1999 The author writing in 1923 starts with the assumption that conduct originates in the actor himself and tries to discover what intelligent conduct may mean if we follow this assumption to its limits He then sets about to harmonize three schools of thought about human nature which have the appearance of being irreconcilably disparate Stated in a nutshell his message is that psychology starts with the unrest of the inner self and it completes its discovery in the contentment of the inner self The Nature of Concepts Philip Van Loocke,2012-10-12 The Nature of Concepts examines a central issue for all the main disciplines in cognitive science how the human mind creates and passes on to other human minds a concept An excellent cross disciplinary collection with contributors including Steven Pinker Andy Clarke and Henry Plotkin

Interpreting Nature Brian Treanor,Martin Drenthen,David Utsler,2013-11-11 Modern environmentalism has come to realize that many of its key concerns wilderness and nature among them are contested territory viewed differently by different people Understanding nature requires science and ecology to be sure but it also requires a sensitivity to history culture and narrative Thus understanding nature is a fundamentally hermeneutic task

The Nature of Psychology Kenneth James Williams Craik,1966 Nature and Therapy Martin Jordan,2014-09-15 Recent decades have seen an increasing interest in the healing and therapeutic potential of nature and interest in the potential of greencare interventions for the benefit of mental health The field of nature based therapies is expanding in line with this interest Nature and Therapy offers a unique contribution by outlining the specific processes involved in conducting counselling and psychotherapy sessions in outdoor natural environments Central areas covered in the book include A thorough exploration of the evidence for the psychological and healing potential of natural spaces Developing a therapeutic rationale for nature based therapeutic work Understanding the therapeutic relationship and the unique therapeutic processes that come into play in outdoor natural spaces Translating indoor therapeutic work to outdoor contexts The practicalities of setting up and running a therapy session outside of a room environment Experiential exercises to explore the therapeutic potential of nature Martin Jordan offers a clear outline of how to set up and hold a therapeutic session outdoors Using case examples Nature and Therapy explores both the practicalities and the therapeutic processes that come into play in an outdoor natural setting The book will be of use to counsellors psychotherapists arts therapists psychologists and health professionals who are interested in taking their therapeutic work into natural environments and outdoor spaces An Analysis of Gordon W. Allport's The Nature of Prejudice Alexander

O'Connor, 2017-07-05 With his 1954 book The Nature of Prejudice American psychologist Gordon Allport displays the crucial skill of reasoning producing and organizing an argument that was persuasive enough to have a major impact not only in universities but also on government policy The question that Allport tackled was an old one why are people so disposed to prejudice against those from other groups Earlier psychologists had suggested a number of reasons especially in the case of racial prejudice Some had suggested that racism was a learned behaviour conditioned by negative experiences of other races others that there was an objective rationale to negative racial stereotypes Allport however reasoned that prejudice is essentially a by product of the necessary mental shortcuts the human brain uses to process the vast amount of information it takes in Because our brains want to use as little effort as possible they regularly fall back on simple stereotypes which easily generate prejudice Gathering strong evidence for this hypothesis he reasoned clearly and persuasively that our natural cognitive approach is the most significant factor in accounting for prejudice Going further still Allport also reasoned that once this was better understood social scientists would be able to influence policy makers to curb discrimination by law

The Nature of Mathematical Thinking Robert J. Sternberg, Talia Ben-Zeev, 2012-10-12 Why do some children seem to learn mathematics easily and others slave away at it learning it only with great effort and apparent pain Why are some people good at algebra but terrible at geometry How can people who successfully run a business as adults have been failures at math in school How come some professional mathematicians suffer terribly when trying to balance a checkbook And why do school children in the United States perform so dismally in international comparisons These are the kinds of real questions the editors set out to answer or at least address in editing this book on mathematical thinking Their goal was to seek a diversity of contributors representing multiple viewpoints whose expertise might converge on the answers to these and other pressing and interesting questions regarding this subject The chapter authors were asked to focus on their own approach to mathematical thinking but also to address a common core of issues such as the nature of mathematical thinking how it is similar to and different from other kinds of thinking what makes some people or some groups better than others in this subject area and how mathematical thinking can be assessed and taught Their work is directed to a diverse audience psychologists interested in the nature of mathematical thinking and abilities computer scientists who want to simulate mathematical thinking educators involved in teaching and testing mathematical thinking philosophers who need to understand the qualitative aspects of logical thinking anthropologists and others interested in how and why mathematical thinking seems to differ in quality across cultures and laypeople and others who have to think mathematically and want to understand how they are going to accomplish that feat
