Before Farming, 2002 Theology, Evolution and the Mind Neil Spurway, 2009-05-05 In pre scientific thought mind

itself and its religious perceptions particularly were considered gifts from God injected into a previously created world of matter. By contrast, all the contributors to this book accept an evolutionary account of life, mind, and its religious dispositions. However, they hold more divergent views on the relation of mind to body and brain, on the validity of those religious dispositions, and on how far even Christ and his predicted Second Coming may be seen as aspects of the evolutionary process. The seventeen contributions are rewritten and extended versions of papers first delivered at the annual conference of the UK's Science and Religion Forum held at Canterbury Christ Church College in Sept 2007. Though most speakers were British, representatives from The Netherlands, Jordan, Zimbabwe, and USA also contributed. Invited individual chapters consider the general pattern of evolutionary thought, arguing that it can make a major contribution to the maturation of theology; archeological evidence for the emergence of religion and the proposal that it was an inevitable phase in human evolution; the contribution of religious concepts to the development of our species and the question whether that provides any ground for accepting them as true; the unresolved debate whether mind is a separate entity from brain or a consequence of its activity; and the melding of paleo-anthropology with theology to provide an integrated account of humanity and its culmination in Christ. Each of these papers is the subject of an individual expert response, and they are all drawn together in an overview essay which concludes the first part of the book. The second, shorter part contains a selection from the papers contributed by registrants for the meeting. Their topics are: whether mathematics consists of truths discovered or thought forms developed by human minds; ecological awareness as an evolutionary development; the neurobiology of free will and sin; an evolutionary perspective on holistic medicine; and the impressive fruitfulness of juxtaposing neurophysiological and biblical concepts of the human body/mind.

Human Natures Paul R. Ehrlich, 2001-12-31. Why do we behave the way we do? Biologist Paul Ehrlich suggests that although people share a common genetic code, these genes do not shout commands at us; at the very most, they whisper suggestions. coding rather it is heavily influenced by cultural conditioning and environmental factors With personal anecdotes a well written narrative and clear examples Human Natures is a major work of synthesis and scholarship as well as a valuable primer on genetics and evolution that makes complex scientific concepts accessible to lay readers
