Perception Of The Environment:

The Perception of the Environment Tim Ingold, 2021-11-29 In this work Tim Ingold offers a persuasive new approach to understanding how human beings perceive their surroundings He argues that what we are used to calling cultural variation consists in the first place of variations in skill Neither innate nor acquired skills are grown incorporated into the human organism through practice and training in an environment They are thus as much biological as cultural To account for the generation of skills we have therefore to understand the dynamics of development And this in turn calls for an ecological approach that situates practitioners in the context of an active engagement with the constituents of their surroundings The twenty three essays comprising this book focus in turn on the procurement of livelihood on what it means to dwell and on the nature of skill weaving together approaches from social anthropology ecological psychology developmental biology and phenomenology in a way that has never been attempted before The book is set to revolutionise the way we think about what is biological and cultural in humans about evolution and history and indeed about what it means for human beings at once organisms and persons to inhabit an environment The Perception of the Environment will be essential reading not only for anthropologists but also for biologists psychologists archaeologists geographers and philosophers This edition includes a new Preface by the author
