

The Target Audience

The target audience for this paper will be Chinese people who have severed all ties to modern society and have developed their own country (in the mountains of Peru) in order to live a more literary life. These people have brought their families (children, lovers, partners, siblings, parents, grandparents, etc.) and have decided to make their own language based on their favorite books.

The point of this dictionary is to enable the people to be able to speak with one another through their favorite literary texts that have their own lexicons in back: therefore, my dictionary will be half a composite dictionary of Burgess's work, Adams, and Carroll, and half words I make up from combining words together, or, Chinglish.

I want the words for Chinglish I choose to include in my dictionary to be words appropriate for this specific group of people, and their environment. Thus, words for llama, mountains, and making up new gods or deities to worship will be included in the dictionary, with side bars on how to appropriately honor them (as per Chinese culture and tradition). Some of the definitions will also have in-text examples as to how best to use the words in a sentence; for instance, "slip carefully" will be included as the location is high in the mountains of Peru where dew and rains make walking granite steps dangerous. I would like to include a swear section as these people are very passionate about what they do and are about (nothing dirty, just fun words like "fiddlesticks" or some equivalent).

A Lyrical Vision Edward Foley, 2020-07-31 The publication of the US Bishops document on music in the liturgy Sing to the Lord 2007 has prompted Edward Foley to review the overall contribution of the Bishops to liturgical music since Vatican Council II He explores the history and content of the US Bishops three previous statements on music in worship In doing so Foley illuminates the stages that led to Sing to the Lord and compares this most fully developed document with its predecessors This concise history and analysis illustrated with sets of comparative tables will be a valuable resource for those who study prepare and lead music in Catholic worship in the United States

Annunciations: Sacred Music for the Twenty-First Century George Corbett, 2019-05-01 Our contemporary culture is communicating ever increasingly through the visual through film and through music This makes it ever more urgent for theologians to explore the resources of art for enriching our understanding and experience of the Judeo Christian tradition Annunciations: Sacred Music for the twenty First Century edited by George Corbett answers this need evaluating the relationship between the sacred and the composition performance and appreciation of music Through the theme of annunciations this volume interrogates how when why through and to whom God communicates in the Old and New Testaments In doing so it tackles the intimate relationship between Scriptural reflection and musical practice in the past its present condition and what the future might hold Annunciations comprises three parts Part I sets out flexible theological and compositional frameworks for a constructive relationship between the sacred and music Part II presents the reflections of theologians and composers involved in collaborating on new pieces of sacred choral music alongside the six new scores and links to the recordings Part III considers the reality of programming and performing sacred works today This volume provides an indispensable resource for scholars and artists working at the interface between theology and the arts and for those involved in sacred music However it will also be of interest to anyone concerned with the ways in which the Divine communicates through word and artistry to humanity

Sacred Music and Liturgical Reform Rev. Anthony Ruff, O.S.B., 2022-01-07 Anthony Ruff O S B has written a brilliant comprehensive well researched book about the treasures of the Church s musical tradition and about the transformations brought about by liturgical reform The liturgy constitution Sacrosanctum Concilium stated many revolutionary principles of liturgical reform Regarding liturgical music the Council s decrees mandated on the one hand the preservation of the inherited treasury of sacred music and on the other hand advocated adaptation and expansion of this treasury to meet the changed requirements of the reformed liturgy In clear precise language he retrieves the Council s neglected teachings on the preservation of the inherited music treasury He clearly shows that this task is not at odds with good pastoral practice but is rather an integral part of it The book proposes an alternate hermeneutic for understanding the Second Vatican Council s teachings on worship music

So You Want to Sing Sacred Music Matthew Hoch, 2016-12-14 Sacred music traditions vary profoundly from one religion to the next Even within the Christian faith one can hear a wide variety of music among and within different denominations Catholics mainline Protestants and Evangelicals have all developed unique traditions Many people are not exposed to multiple faith experiences in their upbringings which can make exploring an unfamiliar sacred music style challenging Because of this singers and teachers regularly encounter religious singing styles to which they have not yet been exposed In So You Want to Sing Sacred Music multiple contributors offer a broad overview of sacred singing in the Judeo Christian tradition Evan Kent Anthony Ruff Matthew Hoch and Sharon L Radionoff share their expertise on topics as diverse as Jewish cantorial music Gregorian chant post Vatican II Catholic music choral traditions and contemporary Christian music This plethora of styles represents the most common traditions encountered by amateur and emerging professional singers when exploring sacred performance opportunities In each chapter contributors consider liturgical origins musical characteristics training requirements repertoire and resources for each of these traditions The writers all professional singers and teachers with rich experience singing these styles also discuss vocal technique as it relates to each style Contributors also offer professional advice for singers seeking work within each tradition s institutional settings surveying the skills needed while offering practical advice for auditioning and performing successfully in the world of sacred music So You Want to Sing Sacred Music is a helpful resource for any singer looking to add sacred performance to their portfolio or seeking opportunities and employment where sacred music is practiced and performed Additional chapters by Scott McCoy Wendy LeBorgne and Matthew Edwards address universal questions of voice science and pedagogy vocal health and audio enhancement technology The So You Want to Sing series is produced in partnership with the National Association of Teachers of Singing Like all books in the series So You Want to Sing Sacred Music features online supplemental material on the NATS website Please visit www.nats.org to access style specific exercises audio and video files and additional resources

Context and Text Kevin W. Irwin, 2018-07-12 One of the most influential works in the debate over the concept and definitions of liturgical theology Context and Text by Monsignor Kevin W Irwin is now available in a completely rewritten new edition In light of the historical theological and pastoral mandates of the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy Context and Text is both a proposal for and an example of an investigation of the Church s liturgical praxis from a liturgical theological perspective This second edition which includes an expanded introduction covers new liturgical and ecclesial contexts resulting from newly promulgated liturgies further research in method for liturgical studies consideration for changes in the cultural contexts in which people celebrate the liturgy Besides brand new chapters on time and sacramentality and additions to the chapter on the arts this edition also considers the ongoing texts and contexts of the liturgy as always a new event in the life and ongoing discussion of liturgical theology within Christianity
