The Timing of Sleep and Wakefulness J. T. Enright, 2012-12-06 The brain functions like a computer composed of subsystems which interact in a hierarchical manner But it is not a single hierarchy but a complex system of hierarchies each of which has its very own and unique feature One of these concerns the cyclic or rhythmic control of neuronal activities which among others give rise to alternating states of wakefulness and sleep The phenomenon of sleep still remains a mystery The present monograph does not give us any new insights into its meaning and significance Yet sleep research may not be the same after the appearance of this book because it gives us a comprehensive mathematical theory which opens our eyes to new insights into the mechanism of the rhythm generation that underlies the wake sleep cycle No one who has worked his way through this book can again look at experimental data without recognizing features which the models developed in its various chapters so strikingly reveal

Lighting the Shakespearean Stage, 1567 - 1642 Robert B. Graves, 1999-12-08 In

Lighting the Shakespearean Stage 1567 1642 R B Graves examines the lighting of early modern English drama from both historical and aesthetic perspectives He traces the contrasting traditions of sunlit amphitheaters and candlelit hall playhouses describes the different lighting techniques and estimates the effect of these techniques both indoors and outdoors Graves discusses the importance of stage lighting in determining the dramatic effect even in cases where the manipulation of light was not under the direct control of the theater artists He devotes a chapter to the early modern lighting equipment available to English Renaissance actors and surveys theatrical lighting before the construction of permanent playhouses in London Elizabethan stage lighting he argues drew on both classical and medieval precedents Intelligent Skins Michael Wigginton, Jude Harris, 2002 Looking to the future Intelligent Skins sets out the principles for the design of the intelligent building envelope It highlights an exciting new approach to the area where the fabric of the building responds to external changes and internal demands The prime objective is to control internal environments through a responsive building fabric rather than by energy consuming building services systems The authors examine the potential for integral intelligence within the fabric of the building and explore the evolution of information technology and smart materials which have allowed a whole new category of design principles to be created Gain a comprehensive knowledge of the evolution of the Intelligent Skin Explores a new approach to Intelligent Buildings focusing on the fabric of the building responding to external changes and internal demands Includes over twenty cutting edge international case studies Early Homes, 2006 Now in its sixth year Early Homes is a biannual special edition that focuses on the period 1690 1850 and its revivals including Colonial and Neoclassical design Each issue contains lavish photos and plenty of product sources The Container Tree Nursery Manual: Atmospheric environment, 1990 Old House Interiors, National architectural magazine now in its fifteenth year covering period inspired design 1700 1950 Commissioned photographs show real homes inspired by the past but livable Historical and interpretive rooms are included new construction additions and new kitchens and baths take their place along with restoration work A feature on furniture appears in every issue Product coverage is extensive Experts offer advice for homeowners and designers on finishing decorating and furnishing period homes of every era A garden feature essays archival material events and exhibitions and book reviews round out the editorial Many readers claim the beautiful advertising all of it design related no lifestyle ads is as important to them as the articles Socialist Senses Emma Widdis, 2017-09-11 Widdis's rich and fascinating book has opened a new perspective from which to think about the Soviet cinema Kritika This major reimagining of the history of Soviet film and its cultural impact explores the fundamental transformations in how film through the senses remade the Soviet self in the 1920s and 1930s Following the Russian Revolution there was a shared ambition for a sensory revolution to accompany political and social change Soviet men and women were to be reborn into a revitalized relationship with the material world Cinema was seen as a privileged site for the creation of this sensory revolution Film could both discover the world anew and model a way of inhabiting it Drawing upon an extraordinary array of films noted scholar Emma Widdis shows how Soviet cinema as it evolved from the revolutionary avant garde to Socialist Realism gradually shifted its materialist agenda from emphasizing the external senses to instilling the appropriate internal senses consciousness emotions in the new Soviet subject     Old-House Journal ,1993-07 Old House Journal is the original magazine devoted to restoring and preserving old houses For more than 35 years our mission has been to help old house owners repair restore update and decorate buildings of every age and architectural style Each issue explores hands on restoration techniques practical architectural guidelines historical overviews and homeowner stories all in a trusted authoritative voice
