Reproductive Development Of The Female:

The Reproductive Development of the Female Montague Francis Ashley Montagu, 1957      Physiological Adaptations for Breeding in Birds Tony D. Williams, 2012-08-05

Physiological Adaptations for Breeding in Birds is the most current and comprehensive account of research on avian reproduction. It develops two unique themes: the consideration of female avian reproductive physiology and ecology and an emphasis on individual variation in life history traits. Tony Williams investigates the physiological, metabolic, energetic, and hormonal mechanisms that underpin individual variation in the key female-specific reproductive traits and the trade-offs between these traits that determine variation in fitness. The core of the book deals with the avian reproductive cycle from seasonal gonadal development through egg laying and incubation to chick rearing. Reproduction is considered in the context of the annual cycle and through an individual's entire life history. The book focuses on timing of breeding, clutch size, egg size, and egg quality, and parental care. It also provides a primer on female reproductive physiology and considers trade-offs and carryover effects between reproduction and other life history stages. In each chapter, Williams describes individual variation in the trait of interest and the evolutionary context for trait variation. He argues that there is only a rudimentary and in some cases nonexistent understanding of the physiological mechanisms that underpin individual variation in the major reproductive life history traits and that research efforts should refocus on these key unresolved problems by incorporating detailed physiological studies into existing long-term population studies, generating a new synthesis of physiology, ecology, and evolutionary biology.

Mammalian Toxicology Mohamed Abou-Donia, 2015-05-04

Mammalian Toxicology surveys chemical agents and examines how such chemicals impact on human health, emphasizing the importance in minimizing environmental exposure to chemical and physical hazards in our homes, communities, and workplaces through such media as contaminated water, soil, and air. Starting with the basic principles on a wide range of toxic agents, this textbook describes how they enter the body, their mechanisms of action once inside, and strategies for diagnosis, prevention, and treatment. Topics covered include: General principles of toxicology; pharmacological and toxicological principles underpinning the study of toxicology; risk assessments and mechanisms of cell death; Disposition routes of chemical exposures; entry into the body and various tissues; storage, metabolic biotransformation, and elimination, with examples from various toxicants; Toxic agents: the occurrences, disposition in the body, health effects, toxic mechanisms, antidotes, and treatments of a range of agents including pesticides, metals, solvents, gases, nanomaterials, food components, and additives; pharmaceuticals, drugs of abuse, natural toxins, endocrine disruptors, radiation, and warfare weapons; Toxic effects including neurotoxicity, developmental toxicity, immunotoxicity, teratogenicity, male and female reproductive toxicity, mutagenicity, carcinogenicity, pulmonary toxicity, cardiovascular toxicity, hepatotoxicity, gastrointestinal toxicity, and cardiovascular toxicity; Toxicology and society: epidemiological studies of chemical-induced diseases in human populations and a vision for toxicology in the 21st century. Mammalian Toxicology is an essential primer for students of toxicology, biochemistry, biology, medicine.
