

A painting depicting a scene of destruction and resistance. In the center, a two-story building is engulfed in bright orange and yellow flames. A path of light leads from the bottom of the frame towards the burning building. The foreground is dark and textured with blue and black brushstrokes, suggesting a body of water or a dark, uneven ground. The background is filled with dark, swirling colors, and a small, dark figure is visible on the right side, possibly a person running or observing. The overall mood is one of intense conflict and tragedy.

Sue Vice, 2021-04-22 As we approach the end of the era of the witness given the passing on of the generation of Holocaust survivors Claude Lanzmann's archive of 220 hours of footage excluded from his ground breaking documentary Shoah 1985 offers a remarkable opportunity to encounter previously unseen interviews with survivors and other witnesses recorded in the late 1970s Although the archive is all available freely to view online and includes extra footage of those who appear in Shoah this book focuses on the interviews from which no extracts appear in the finished film or in any subsequent release The material analysed features interviews with such significant figures as the former partisan Abba Kovner wartime activist Hansi Brand Kovno Ghetto leader Leib Garfunkel rescuer Tadeusz Pankiewicz and members of Roosevelt's War Refugee Board and focuses throughout on the efforts at rescue and resistance by those within and outside occupied Europe Sue Vice contends that watching and analysing this wholly excluded footage gives us new insights into the making of Shoah through what was left out Moreover she reveals that the near impossibility of rescue and often suicidal implications of resistance emerge through these excluded interviews as inextricable from the process of genocide She concludes by arguing that the outtakes show the potential for new filmic forms envisaged on Lanzmann's part in order to represent the crucial topics of attempted Holocaust rescue and resistance Paldiel, Judy Baumel-Schwartz, 2021-08-12 This timely volume brings together an international team of leading scholars to explore the ways that women responded to situations of immense deprivation need and victimization under Hitler's dictatorship. Paying acute attention to the differences that gender made, Women Defying Hitler examines the forms of women's defiance, the impact these women had, and the moral and ethical dilemmas they faced. Several essays also address the special problems of the memory and historiography of women's history during World War II, and the book features standpoints of historians as well as the voices of survivors and their descendants. Notably, this book also serves as a guide for human behaviour under extremely difficult conditions. The book is relevant today for challenging discrimination against women and for its nuanced exploration of the conditions minorities face as outspoken protagonists of human rights issues and as resisters of discrimination. From this perspective, the voices being empowered in this book are clear examples of the importance of protest by women in forcing a totalitarian regime to pause and reconsider its options for the moment. In revealing so, Women Defying Hitler ultimately foregrounds that women rescuers and resisters were and are of great continuing consequence.
