Our Conrad Peter Mallios, 2010-09-21 Our Conrad is about the American reception of Joseph Conrad and its crucial role in the formation of American modernism Although Conrad did not visit the country until a year before his death his fiction served as both foil and mirror to America's conception of itself and its place in the world Peter Mallios reveals the historical and political factors that made Conrad's work valuable to a range of prominent figures including Fitzgerald Faulkner Richard Wright Woodrow Wilson and Theodore and Edith Roosevelt and explores regional differences in Conrad's reception He proves that foreign authored writing can be as integral a part of United States culture as that of any native Arguing that an individual writer's apparent national gendered racial political identity is not always a good predictor of the diversity of voices and dialogues to which he gives rise this exercise in transnational comparativism participates in post Americanist efforts to render American Studies less insular and parochial

Failed Alliances of the Cold War Panagiotis Dimitrakis, 2011-12-18 The Cold War was a period of intense political rivalry in which diplomacy and international relations in Asia and the Middle East acquired huge global significance In this study Panagiotis Dimitrakis explores British policy towards SEATO South East Asia Treaty Organisation and CENTO Central Treaty Organisation Designed in the 1950s to counter the Soviet Union's attempts to expand its global influence these alliances with Asian and Middle Eastern powers were at the centre of western efforts to maintain regional influence Yet they failed to bring together the differing aims and ambitions of their regional members and were dissolved in 1977 and 1979 respectively This study examines the Cold War policies of the United States Iran and Pakistan as well as the effect of British diplomacy on the war in Vietnam and SEATO planning The formation of CENTO in 1959 an alliance comprising Britain Iran Turkey and Pakistan with the support of the USA was one of the grandest Cold War gestures of solidarity The emergence of new diplomatic records however questions the true commitment of Britain and the United States to come to the defence of their new allies in Asia and the Middle East In fact even in cases of aggression on the part of the Soviet Union the priorities of Britain and the USA were ultimately self serving despite their Cold War rhetoric of ideological unity and common purpose As the 1950s came to a close serious irreconcilable differences in the defence policies of the SEATO and CENTO members began to emerge Citing the latest declassified British and American intelligence assessments diplomats dispatches and military plans Dimitrakis shows how nations across South East Asia fought for material supremacy how Britain and the United States avoided supporting SEATO and CENTO and how this led to the demise of these alliances Failed Alliances of the Cold War will be a crucial point of reference for scholars of the Cold War and those working in the fields of History Politics and International Relations
