Making Of The Modern Greek Family:

The Making of the Modern Greek Family Paul Sant Cassia, Constantina Bada, 1992 This 1991 study deals with a specific set of institutions in nineteenth century Athens Relying on matrimonial contracts travellers accounts memoirs and popular literature the authors show how distinctive forms of marriage kinship and property transmission evolved in Athens in the nineteenth century These forms then became a feature of wider Greek society which continued into the twentieth century Greece was the first post colonial modern nation state in Europe whose national identity was created largely by peasants who had migrated to the city As Athenian society became less agrarian a new mercantile group superseded and incorporated previous elites and went on to dominate and control the new resources of the nation state Such groups developed their own more mobile systems of property transmission mostly in response to external pressures of a political and economic character This is a persuasive piece of detective work which has advanced our knowledge of modern Greece It is a model for scholarship on the development of family and other intimate ideologies where nation states encroach upon local consciousness

Household Interests Cheryl Anne Cox, 2014-07-14 Household Interests is one of the first books to explore in depth the nature of the Greek household oikos in classical Athens Whereas the oikos traditionally has been defined as the household of the nuclear family in Greece Cheryl Anne Cox reveals it as a much more fluid structure taking care to distinguish between the concepts of household and family The legal basis of the typical elite household emerges as Cox describes marriage patterns or strategies among the families represented in Attic orations and funerary inscriptions property interests were a strong motivating force with the elite marrying within their kin primarily through paternal lines in which property was transferred The author ultimately shows that the household was not limited to family or kinspeople Friends neighbors concubines or prostitutes and slaves also shared in property interests and all could have a profound influence on the household After first examining marriage patterns Cox turns to inter family relationships Using anthropological sources and historical studies of European societies she shows how property interest shaped often conflicted relations between parents and their children and among brothers and yet it encouraged male charity toward sisters Cox next considers how property transfer through adoption guardianship and remarriage and the intervention of friends concubines and slaves all contributed to expanding the boundaries of the household beyond kin Originally published in 1998 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905
