Manufacturing contributes to over 60 % of the gross national product of the highly industrialized nations of Europe. The advances in mechanization and automation in manufacturing of international competitors are seriously challenging the market position of the European countries in different areas. Thus it becomes necessary to increase significantly the productivity of European industry. This has prompted many governments to support the development of new automation resources. Good engineers are also needed to develop the required automation tools and to apply these to manufacturing. It is the purpose of this book to discuss new research results in manufacturing with engineers who face the challenge of building tomorrow's factories. Early automation efforts were centered around mechanical gear and cam technology and hardwired electrical control circuits. Because of the decreasing life cycle of most new products and the enormous model diversification, factories cannot be automated efficiently any more by these conventional technologies. With the digital computer, its fast calculation speed and large memory capacity, a new tool was created which can substantially improve the productivity of manufacturing processes. The computer can directly control production and quality assurance functions and adapt itself quickly to changing customer orders and new products.

Lindgren, 1985 The book's text and many photographs introduce readers to the renowned teachers and researchers who are still well known in engineering circles Electrical engineering is a protean profession Today the field embraces many disciplines that seem far removed from its roots in the telegraph telephone electric lamps motors and generators To a remarkable extent this chronicle of change and growth at a single institution is a capsule history of the discipline and profession of electrical engineering as it developed worldwide Even when MIT was not leading the way the department was usually quick to adapt to changing needs goals curricula and research programs What has remained constant throughout is the dynamic interaction of teaching and research flexibility of administration the interconnections with industrial progress and national priorities The book s text and many photographs introduce readers to the renowned teachers and researchers who are still well known in engineering circles among them Vannevar Bush Harold Hazen Edward Bowles Gordon Brown Harold Edgerton Ernst Guillemin Arthur von Hippel and Jay Forrester The book covers the department s major areas of activity electrical power systems servomechanisms circuit theory communications theory radar and microwaves developed first at the famed Radiation Laboratory during World War II insulation and dielectrics electronics acoustics and computation This rich history of accomplishments shows moreover that years before Computer Science was added to the department s name such pioneering results in computation and control as Vannevar Bush s Differential Analyzer early cybernetic devices and numerically controlled servomechanisms the Whirlwind computer and the evolution of time sharing computation had already been achieved
