

Nursing Practice: The Perceptions of Caring

Topic: Health & Medicine | Words: 286 | Pages: 1

There are several different perceptions of caring in contemporary nursing practice, which all generally imply kindness in attitude towards patients. Therefore, the concept of caring includes different states or purposes, such as general state of the health care service provider, caring as an intervention method, and caring as an approach to interpersonal relationships. Differences in perceptions of care can influence each individual's approach degree of caring principles applied in professional practice.

Examining different perceptions of caring in nursing studies can provide a substantial guide in defining a personal perspective. According to Turkel et al. (2018), caring can be acknowledged as the essence of nursing. Moreover, caring provides the foundational core of the nursing as a profession (Turkel et al., 2018). On the other hand, the author suggested that the concept of caring can be differentiated from caring science applicable in all specialties of nursing practice, such as education and nursing informatics. In my opinion, caring presents a holistic approach to the healing process that requires nurses' engagement and commitment.

In conclusion, I plan to adhere to caring and holistic nursing principles in my future professional practice. According to Sebrant and Jong (2020), nurses often have obstacles in caring exercises due to trouble applying the theory to clinical practice. In order to eliminate the possibility of future difficulties, I plan to carefully study the principles of caring and holistic nursing and gradually put them into practice through

Nursing Case Studies in Caring Charlotte Barry, Shirley

Gordon, Beth King, 2015-06-04. Uncovers the art and science of nursing grounded in caring for all nursing situations. Grounded in the belief that caring is the central domain of nursing, this innovative book presents a new approach to nursing situations. These are case studies depicting shared lived experiences between the nurse and patient that are studied from various theoretical perspectives. They are designed to foster a nursing student's ability to care effectively for a patient, family, or group. Each case study features a compelling scenario that engages the reader to feel and fully participate in the caring experience. The book presents a variety of situations that new and experienced nurses are likely to encounter, many of which present scenarios that require caring for a patient under difficult or complex circumstances. The book addresses the need, as defined by leading health care and nursing education organizations, for the study of nursing from a contextual, story-oriented perspective. It is based on the Barry Gordon King Teaching Learning Nursing Framework developed as a guide to uncover the art and science of nursing grounded in caring in all nursing situations. Following a description of the framework's foundational concepts, the text describes how to use nursing situations to facilitate learning. The scenarios offer detailed practical strategies for analyzing nursing situations in ways that bring to life the simple and complex practice of nursing grounded in caring. These real-life stories also help students understand the impact of health conditions on individuals and families, thereby fostering empathy. Case studies address nursing situations across a variety of populations, health concerns, and practice settings Using multiple ways of knowing and understanding each scenario concludes with direct and reflective questions that help students develop nursing knowledge and skills The book serves as a core resource for nurse educators and students at all levels seeking to study the art and science of nursing grounded in caring Additionally the book is a resource for in service educators in health care systems that specifically address caring as an essential value for practice

KEY FEATURES Delivers a new approach to nursing education focusing on the context of caring between nurse and patient Presents a collection of real life nursing scenarios designed to foster caring knowledge and skills under all circumstances Offers detailed practical strategies for analyzing nursing situations to aid in learning the practice of nursing grounded in caring Helps students to understand the impact of health conditions on individuals and families Caring Madeleine M.
