I Must Decrease William Moore, 2003-02-03 I Must Decrease parallels four seemingly unrelated subjects to demonstrate the universality of God's principles These principles then demonstrate various levels of spiritual growth available to Christians Characteristics of Christians at the various levels help us to identify our level of development and as these subjects are examined the importance of some form of self denial becomes apparent At the same time it is demonstrated that God appreciates us as individuals and seeks a merging of our individual personalities with God's Spirit Whatever your level of Scriptural knowledge or spiritual growth you will encounter new ideas and ways to look at the Scriptures and your life

Biblical Theology of prayer in the New Testament Francois P. Viljoen, Albert J. Coetsee, 2023-08-31 This publication deals with a biblical theology of prayer based on the New Testament It forms the second of a two volume publication on a biblical theology of prayer dealing with the concept of prayer in the Old and New Testament respectively This New Testament volume begins with an introduction on prayer and worship in early Jewish tradition followed by eleven chapters dealing with New Testament corpora It concludes with a final chapter synthesising the findings of the respective investigations of the Old and New Testament corpora to provide a summative theological perspective of the development of the concept of prayer through scripture Prayer forms a major and continuous theme throughout the biblical text Prayer was an integral part of the religious existence of God's people in both the Old and New Testament It underwent its greatest developments during after and as a result of the Exile and was deepened and transformed in the New Testament In both the Old and the New Testament God is the sole addressee of his people's prayer This conviction continued into the New Testament but was broadened with Trinitarian elements of worship adoration and intercession A biblical theological investigation is chosen as methodology Since all the biblical books form part of one canonical text the assumption is that the various theologies about prayer being displayed in these books can be synthesised into a developing meta theology about prayer As the Old and New Testament form part of the canonical text the results about prayer in the Old Testament can be brought into play with the results about prayer in the New Testament This eventually leads toward an overarching biblical theology of prayer

New Literacies and Teacher Learning Michele Knobel, Judy Kalman, 2016-03-30 New Literacies and Teacher Learning examines the complexities of teacher professional development today in relation to new literacies and digital technologies set within the wider context of strong demands for teachers to be innovative and to improve students learning outcomes Contributors hail from Argentina Australia Canada Finland Mexico Norway and the U S and work in a broad range of situations grade levels activities scales and even national contexts Projects include early year education through to adult literacy education and university contexts describing a range of approaches to taking up new literacies and digital technologies within diverse learning practices While the authors present detailed descriptions of using various digital resources like movie editing software wikis video conferencing Twitter and YouTube they all agree that digital stuff while important is not the central concern Instead what they foreground in their discussions are theory informed pedagogical orientations collaborative learning theories the complexities of teachers workplaces and young people's interests Thus a key premise in this collection is that teaching and learning are about deep engagement representing meanings in a range of ways These include acknowledging relationships and knowledge thinking critically about events phenomena and processes and participating in valued social and cultural activities The book shows how this kind of learning doesn't simply occur in a one off session but takes time commitment and multiple opportunities to interact with others to explore play make mistakes and get it right
