Helena Rietmann, 2021-07-19 In 2006 the United Arab Emirates initiated the Masdar City project which was a pre planned eco city concentrating on the development and promotion of renewable energy water and waste management sustainable building transportation and material efficiency It was the flagship project of what the government considered to be a widespread environmental reform process This study examines the Masdar City project applying the analytical framework of ecological modernization with the help of five factors which help to investigate the ongoing reform process The study finds that Masdar City is more accurately described as an outcome of the Abu Dhabi government s economic diversification strategy The project is subject to the political and economic interests of the emirate s ruling family Environmental groups operating within the emirate are connected to the government and pursue policy targets determined by the government Ecological Modernisation and Environmental Compliance Shahpar Selim, 2013-02-01 garments RMG industry the seventh largest in the world facing demands for environmental and social management according to standards set by consumers in environmentally progressive societies Apart from these concerns not having found cultural or institutional resonance in Bangladesh the pressures for cost reduction on time delivery and cheap labour in a highly competitive international market make the problem that much more complex In this book Selim uses the analytical framework provided by the ecological modernisation theory to examine the economic communicative and social political aspects of ethical trade and argues that the economy ecology relationship can indeed be a positive sum game if nation states and economic actors change their policymaking styles and greening behaviour to take advantage of scientific evidence and green technological opportunities

When Green Growth Is Not Enough Anders Hayden, 2014-11-01 Is the pursuit of endless economic growth compatible with the deep reductions in greenhouse gas emissions required to avoid the worst extremes of climate change In When Green Growth Is Not Enough Anders Hayden analyzes the political battle between three competing approaches to this question and how it has played out in Canada and Britain Defenders of the business as usual approach reject climate action as too costly and in conflict with economic growth while downplaying the severity of climate change Supporters of ecological modernization or green growth on the other hand aim to use technology and efficiency to delink economic expansion from emissions and find business opportunities through environmental action While mainstream debate has focused on these two pro growth models Hayden pays particular attention to the struggles and limited inroads of a third more radical perspective the idea of sufficiency which challenges the continued growth of production and consumption in the already affluent global North and asks how much is enough Drawing on interviews participation in climate related events and analysis of key documents Hayden shows the role these paradigms have played in Britain one of the world's leaders in climate reform and in Canada a nation at the bottom of international climate change rankings Rich in detail When Green Growth Is Not Enough is a lively account of the theory and real world politics of climate action Environmental Sociology Matthias Groß, Harald Heinrichs, 2010-06-17 Despite being a relatively young sub discipline European environmental sociology has changed considerably in the last decades towards more interdisciplinary collaborations and problem solving Current trends such as global environmental modernization and processes of economic political and socio cultural globalization fuelled by developments of transport environmental flows scientific uncertainty and information technologies have fostered new conceptual approaches that move beyond classical sociological mind sets toward broader attempts to connect to other disciplines International Encyclopedia of Environmental Politics John Barry, E. Transnational Buildings in Local Environments Luciana Melchert Saguas Presas, 2017-11-22 By focusing on the skyscraping transnational building this book bridges two key debates on the transformation and emerging problems besetting major cities globalization and ecological and sustainable building design While such structures tend to be constructed and or used by transnational companies and are generally viewed as emblems of a global city they nevertheless impact seriously on their local environment posing numerous environmental burdens on it By examining office blocks held by multinational firms in Amsterdam S o Paolo and Beijing the book analyses how transnational buildings might be made sustainable It compares and contrasts the different social mechanisms that are or may be in place and how sustainable building practices that are being activated in certain locations could be adopted elsewhere

Treadmill of Production Kenneth A. Gould, David N. Pellow, Allan Schnaiberg, 2015-11-17 Schnaiberg s concept of the treadmill of production is arguably the most visible and enduring theory to emerge in three decades of environmental sociology Elaborated and tested it has been found to be an accurate predictor of political economic changes in the global economy In the global South it has figures prominently in the work of structural environmental analysts and has been used by many political economic movements Building new extensions and applications of the treadmill theory this new book shows how and why northern analysts and governments have failed to protect our environment and secure our future Using an empirically based political economic perspective the authors outline the causes of environmental degradation the limits of environmental protection policies and the failures of institutional decision makers to protect human well being

Governing Sustainable Energies in China Geoffrey Chun-fung Chen, 2016-06-29 This book examines sustainable energy development in China a non liberal state as a counterexample to conventional wisdom that effective policy outcomes are premised on the basis of decentralized governance The use of sustainable energies as part of the solution for stabilising global warming has been promoted in industrialised countries for the past three decades In the last ten years China has expanded its renewable energy capacity with unprecedented speed and breadth This phenomenon seems to contradict the principle of orthodox environmental governance in which stakeholder participation is deemed a necessary condition for effective policy outcomes Based upon policy documents news report and interviews with 32 policy makers business leaders and NGO practitioners in selected subnational governments this book examines the politics of sustainable energy in China It engages debates over the relationships among democratic prioritisation environmental protection and economic empowerment arguing that China's quasi corporatist model in the sustainable energy field challenges Western scholars dominant assumptions about ecopolitics

Philosophy, Technology, and the Environment David M. Kaplan, 2017-03-03 Contributions by prominent scholars examining the intersections of environmental philosophy and philosophy of technology Environmental philosophy and philosophy of technology have taken divergent paths despite their common interest in examining human modification of the natural world Yet philosophers from each field have a lot to contribute to the other Environmental issues inevitably involve technologies and technologies inevitably have environmental impacts In this book prominent scholars from both fields illuminate the intersections of environmental philosophy and philosophy of technology offering the beginnings of a rich new hybrid discourse All the contributors share the intuition that technology and the environment overlap in ways that are relevant in both philosophical and practical terms They consider such issues as the limits of technological interventions in the natural world whether a concern for the environment can be designed into things how consumerism relates us to artifacts and environments and how food and animal agriculture raise questions about both culture and nature They discuss among other topics the pessimism and dystopianism shared by environmentalists environmental philosophers and philosophers of technology the ethics of geoengineering and climate change the biological analogy at the heart of industrial ecology green products and sustainable design and agriculture as a bridge between technology and the environment Contributors Braden Allenby Raymond Anthony Philip Brey J Baird Callicott Brett Clark Wyatt Galusky Ryan Gunderson Benjamin Hale Clare Heyward Don Idhe Mark Sagoff Julian Savulescu Paul B Thompson Ibo van de Poel Zhang Wei Kyle Powys Whyte The Ecological Modernisation Reader Arthur P.J. Electric Mountains Shaun A. Golding, 2021-07-16 Climate change has shifted from future menace to current event As eco conscious electricity consumers we want to do our part in weening from fossil fuels but what are we actually a part of Committed environmentalists in one of North America s most progressive regions desperately wanted energy policies that address the climate crisis For many of them wind turbines on Northern New England s iconic ridgelines symbolize the energy transition that they have long hoped to see For others however ridgeline wind takes on a very different meaning When weighing its costs and benefits locally and globally some wind opponents now see the graceful structures as symbols of corrupted energy politics This book derives from several years of research to make sense of how wind turbines have so starkly split a community of environmentalists as well as several communities In doing so it casts a critical light on the roadmap for energy transition that Northern New England s ridgeline wind projects demarcate It outlines how ridgeline wind conforms to antiquated social structures propping up corporate energy interests to the detriment of the swift de carbonizing and equitable transformation that climate predictions warrant It suggests therefore that the energy transition of which most of us are a part is probably not the transition we would have designed ourselves if we had been asked
