Making Sense Ralf Hertel, 2021-07-26 Fiction is fascinating All it provides us with is black letters on white pages yet while we read we do not have the impression that we are merely perceiving abstract characters Instead we see the protagonists before our inner eye and hear their voices Descriptions of sumptuous meals make our mouths water we feel physically repelled by depictions of violence or are aroused by the erotic details of sexual conquests We submerge ourselves in the fictional world that no longer stays on the paper but comes to life in our imagination Reading turns into an out of the body experience or rather an in another body experience for we perceive the portrayed world not only through the protagonist's eyes but also through his ears nose tongue and skin In other words we move through the literary text as if through a virtual reality How does literature achieve this trick How does it turn mere letters into vividly experienced worlds This study argues that techniques of sensuous writing contribute decisively to bringing the text to life in the reader's imagination In detailed interpretations of British novels of the 1980s and 1990s by writers such as John Berger John Banville Salman Rushdie Jeanette Winterson or J M Coetzee it uncovers literary strategies for turning the sensuous experience into words and for conveying it to the reader demonstrating how we make sense in and of literature Both readers interested in the contemporary novel and in the sensuousness of the reading experience will profit from this innovative study that not only analyses the interest of contemporary authors in the senses but also pin points literary entry points for the sensuous force of reading

Landscapes of Memory and Experience Jan Birksted, 2012-12-06 It has been argued that the history of landscape and of gardens has been marginalized from the mainstream of art history and visual studies because of a lack of engagement with the theories methods and concepts of these disciplines This book explores possible ways out of this impasse in such a way that landscape studies would become pivotal through its theoretical advances since landscape studies would challenge the underlying assumptions of traditional phenomenological theory Thus the history and theory of twentieth century landscape might not only once again share concepts and methods with contemporary art and design history but might in turn influence them A complementary sequel to Relating Architecture to Landscape this volume of essays explores further areas of interest and discussion in the landscape architecture debate and offers contributions from a team of well known researchers teachers and writers The choice of topics is wide ranging and features case studies of modern and contemporary schemes from the USA Far East and Australasia

Beyond 1989 Keith Bullivant, 1997 With the opening up of the East in the autumn of 1989 claims were being made on the one hand that German literature had never in fact been divided while others were proclaiming the end of East and West German literatures as they had existed and the beginning of a new era

Germany and Eastern Europe, 2023-08-14 The opening up and subsequent tearing down of the Berlin Wall in 1989 effectively ended a historically unique period for Europe that had drastically changed its face over a period of fifty years and redefined in all sorts of ways what was meant by East and West For Germany in particular this radical change meant much more than unification of the divided country although initially this process seemed to consume all of the country's energies and emotions While the period of the Cold War saw the emergence of a Federal Republic distinctly Western in orientation the coming down of the Iron Curtain meant that Germany's relationship with its traditional neighbours to the East and the South East which had been essentially frozen or redefined in different ways for the two German states by the Cold War had to be rediscovered This volume which brings together scholars in German Studies from the United States Germany and other European countries examines the history of the relationship between Germany and Eastern Europe and the opportunities presented by the changes of the 1990's drawing particular attention to the interaction between the willingness of German and its Eastern neighbours to work for political and economic integration on the one hand and the cultural and social problems that stem from old prejudices and unresolved disputes left over from the Second World War on the other

The Art of Taking a Walk Anke Gleber, 2020-09-01 Anke Gleber examines one of the most intriguing and characteristic figures of European urban modernity the observing city stroller or flaneur In an age transformed by industrialism the flaneur drifted through city streets inspired and repelled by the surrounding scenes of splendor and squalor Gleber examines this often elusive figure in the particular contexts of Weimar Germany and the intellectual sphere of Walter Benjamin with whom the concept of flânerie is often associated She sketches the European influences that produced the German flaneur and establishes the figure as a pervasive presence in Weimar culture as well as a profound influence on modern perceptions of public space The book begins by exploring the theory of literary flânerie and the technological changes street lighting public transportation and the emergence of film that gave a new status to the activities of seeing and walking in the modern city Gleber then assesses the place of flânerie in works by Benjamin Siegfried Kracauer and other representatives of Weimar literature arts and theory She draws particular attention to the works of Franz Hessel a Berlin flaneur who argued that flânerie is a reading of the city that perceives passersby streets and fleeting impressions as the transitory signs of modernity Gleber also examines connections between flânerie and Weimar film and discusses female flânerie as a means of asserting female subjectivity in the public realm The book is a deeply original and searching reassessment of the complex intersections among modernity vision and public space

Romanticism and Visuality Sophie Thomas, 2007-12-12 This book investigates the productive crosscurrents between visual culture and literary texts in the Romantic period focusing on the construction and manipulation of the visual the impact of new visual media on the literary and historical imagination and on fragments and ruins as occupying the shifting border between the visible and the invisible It examines a broad selection of instances that reflect debates over how seeing should itself be viewed instances from Daguerre's Diorama to the staging of Coleridge's play Remorse to the figure of the Medusa in Shelley's poetry and at the Phantasmagoria in which the very act of seeing is represented or dramatized. In reconsidering literary engagements with the expanding visual field, this study argues that the popular culture of Regency Britain reflected not just emergent and highly capitalized forms of mass entertainment but also a lively interest in the aesthetic and conceptual dimensions of looking. What is commonly thought to be the Romantic resistance to the visible gives way to a generative fascination with the visual and its imaginative even spectacular possibilities.

Hearing with the Mind Carmel Raz, 2025. Hearing with the Mind synthesizes two approaches to music: cognitive psychology and social history, by focusing on the work of John Holden (1729–72), one of the first musical thinkers to propose a detailed account of how the human mind perceives music. Carmel Raz investigates Holden's proto-cognitive music theory and its afterlife in the writings of the Scottish siblings Walter (1745–1814) and Anne Young (1756–c. 1813) within the context of the Scottish Enlightenment. Raz shows how the contributions of marginalized figures in the history of music theory reflect Britain's social transformations and global entanglements in the rising age of empire.

The Aesthetics of Emotion Gerald C. Cupchik, 2016-07-28. Gerald C. Cupchik builds a bridge between science and the humanities, arguing that interactions between mind and body in everyday life are analogous to relations between subject matter and style in art. According to emotional phase theory, emotional reactions emerge in a perfect storm whereby meaningful situations evoke bodily memories that unconsciously shape and unify the experience. Similarly, in expressionist or impressionist painting, an evocative visual style can spontaneously colour the experience and interpretation of subject matter. Three basic situational themes encompass complementary pairs of primary emotions: attachment/happiness, sadness/assertion, fear/anger, and absorption/interest/disgust. Action episodes in which a person adapts to challenges or seeks to realize goals benefit from energizing bodily responses which focus attention on the situation while providing feedback in the form of pleasure or pain regarding success or failure. In high representational paintings, style is transparent, making it easier to fluently identify subject matter.
