Global Rogues and Regional Orders Il Hyun Cho, 2016 Global Rogues and Regional Orders examines the relationship between nuclear proliferation and regional order in East Asia and the Middle East looking at what factors shape the perceptions and responses of relevant regional actors to North Korea and Iran why some of these regional actors cooperate with the United States while others do not and the consequences of shifting relations among these countries

The International Politics of EU-China Relations Liu Fei, 2007-12-13 The EU China relationship is fast developing in its own context and in the wider context of international politics In these essays major scholars from Europe and China debate the nature problems and potential of the emerging strategic relationship between these two international actors Developing the Mekong Evelyn Goh, 2013-01-11 In Southeast Asia China's growing economic and political strength has been accompanied by adept diplomacy and active promotion of regional cooperation institutions and integration. Southeast Asian states and China engage in strategic regionalism; they seek regional membership for regime legitimation and collective bargaining and regional integration to enhance economic development regarded as essential for ensuring national and regime security. Sino-Southeast Asian regionalism is exemplified by the development plans for the Mekong River basin where ambitious projects for building regional infrastructural linkages and trade contribute to mediating the security concerns of the Mekong countries. However, Mekong regionalism also generates new insecurities. Developing the resources of the Mekong has led to serious challenges in terms of governance, distribution and economic externalities. Resource allocation and exploitation conflicts occur most obviously within the realm of water projects, especially hydropower development programmes. While such disputes are not likely to erupt into armed conflict because of the power asymmetry between China and the lower Mekong states, they exacerbate Southeast Asian concerns about China's rise and undermine Chinese rhetoric about peaceful development. But the negative security consequences of developing the Mekong are also due to the shared economic imperative and the Southeast Asian states' own difficulties with collective action due to existing intramural conflicts.

Multilateral Approach In China's Foreign Policy Joseph Yu-shek Cheng, 2017-12-21 Since the mid 1990s the Chinese authorities have gradually come to embrace multilateralism to realize their basic foreign policy objectives in maintaining a peaceful international environment and enhancing China's international status and influence. This embrace is largely based on pragmatic considerations. There is no denial, however, that elements of liberalism and constructivism gradually enter into the considerations of Chinese leaders. They accept, for example, that non-traditional security issues can only be tackled through genuine multilateralism. This volume carefully examines China's increased participation in multilateral organizations and mechanisms and its efforts to initiate and develop its own discourses on global affairs straddling Asia, the Middle East, Africa and the Latin American continents. China's presence in international multilateral organizations has been providing developing countries a better chance to maintain a balance of power. Since China has no ambitious plan to transform the existing international order, its increasing enthusiastic engagement of multilateralism is likely to be accepted by the international community.

Southeast Asia between China and Japan Lam Peng Er, Victor Teo, 2011-11-15 Triangular relations which frame China and Japan as two sides of an isosceles triangle usually focus on the United States as the significant third side. This edited book examines another relatively underexplored set of triangular relations: those between China, Japan and Southeast Asia. The region comprised of eleven small and medium size states is often considered inconsequential in the tempestuous world of international politics where political clout, economic prowess, military strength and soft power matter most. Often seen as easily dominated by extra-regional great powers, this volume reconsiders the region's relationship with China and Japan their two Asian neighbours to the northeast which also happen to be the world's second and third largest economies While China and Japan do compete for turf in Southeast Asia states in the region do not perceive themselves as strategic pawns of these two great Asian powers but instead as proactively engaging China and Japan in the region The country specific case studies of this book collectively support the thesis that the Southeast Asian states actively seek to manoeuvre between China and Japan for their own advantage and at the same time grapple with developments in Northeast Asia through regional integration efforts Through the establishment of benchmark norms and values Southeast Asia attempts to socialise China and Japan and other external powers to the ASEAN way Indeed Southeast Asia as a region is now the driver of East Asian multilateralism and regionalism and the East Asian reality is that Southeast Asia is a major political economic and cultural player in its own right vis vis the great powers

China - Neighboring Asian Countries Relations Li Xiangyang, 2013-03-01 China has a myriad and diverse range of neighbours who are significant in their own right but are also of global importance Asia accounts for 25% of global GDP This book evaluates the potential for both co operation and conflict within the Asian region Border problems and historical problems are still plaguing countries in the region and are affecting the relations between them China and India have not yet resolved their land frontier issues Furthermore China has maritime disputes with Japan South Korea Vietnam and the Philippines The historical issues among China Japan and South Korea make the cooperation between them lack a basis of political mutual trust Therefore although there are close trade contacts among these countries China Japan and South Korea have not reached any FTA In South Asia because of long term India Pakistan conflicts South Asia's Association for Regional Cooperation SAARC has been useless and is unable to effectively promote regional economic cooperation which is a factor in pushing India to develop towards the East These unstable factors have not only hindered the formation of long term institutional arrangements on economic and trade cooperation within the region but have also caused various unexpected events to disrupt existing cooperation Throughout this book economic data and analysis is provided which gives an insight into the trade and financial links that bind this region together Written by experts in China it gives a fascinating view of China s approach to its neighbours China is assuming a more important role on the world stage but it is important to not forget the key role it plays in its own neighbourhood America's Challenge Michael D.

Swaine,2012-05-01 The emergence of the People s Republic of China on the world scene constitutes the most significant event in world politics since the end of World War II As the world s predominant political economic and military power the United States faces a particularly significant challenge in responding to China s rising power and influence especially in Asia Offering a fresh perspective on current and future U S policy toward China Michael Swaine examines the basic interests and beliefs behind U S China relations recent U S and Chinese policy practices in seven key areas and future trends most likely to affect U S policy American leaders he concludes must reexamine certain basic assumptions and approaches regarding America s position in the Western Pacific integrate China policy more effectively into a broader Asian strategy and recalibrate the U S balance between cooperative engagement and deterrence toward Beijing
