Alaska's Changing Boreal Forest F. Stuart Chapin, Mark W. Oswood, Keith van Cleve, Leslie A. Viereck, David L. Verbyla, 2006-01-12 The boreal forest is the northern most woodland biome whose natural history is rooted in the influence of low temperature and high latitude Alaska s boreal forest is now warming as rapidly as the rest of Earth providing an unprecedented look at how this cold adapted fire prone forest adjusts to change This volume synthesizes current understanding of the ecology of Alaska s boreal forests and describes their unique features in the context of circumpolar and global patterns It tells how fire and climate contributed to the biome s current dynamics As climate warms and permafrost permanently frozen ground thaws the boreal forest may be on the cusp of a major change in state The editors have gathered a remarkable set of contributors to discuss this swift environmental and biotic transformation Their chapters cover the properties of the forest the changes it is undergoing and the challenges these alterations present to boreal forest managers In the first section the reader can absorb the geographic and historical context for understanding the boreal forest The book then delves into the dynamics of plant and animal communities inhabiting this forest and the biogeochemical processes that link these organisms In the last section the authors explore landscape phenomena that operate at larger temporal and spatial scales and integrates the processes described in earlier sections Much of the research on which this book is based results from the Bonanza Creek Long Term Ecological Research Program Here is a synthesis of the substantial literature on Alaska s boreal forest that should be accessible to professional ecologists students and the interested public

Stevenson,2021-04-12 Part expos part memoir part reference manual for reconciling Indigenous and non Indigenous rights in Canada Do You Eat the Red Ones Last takes the reader on one anthropologist s journey through the turbulent waters of Canada s contested lands and resources Drawing on personal experiences and the wisdom of Indigenous elders and scholars Marc G Stevenson offers unique insights into how settler society has dismantled Indigenous knowledge and governance systems while expropriating their lands and resources In particular he explores the contentious spaces where the land use rights and knowledge claims of the two cultures collide and examines why the promise of reconciliation remains so elusive Lastly he considers how we might transform our mindsets from that of colonial agents to that of post colonial allies In its forward looking conclusion Do You Eat the Red Ones Last identifies some directions that might collectively take us on a more ethical and rewarding path to reparations and co existence As such it joins a growing body of critical thought committed to generating real opportunity for reconciling Indigenous settler rights in Canada
