Diekelmann, 2012-11 Contributors Nancy L Diekelmann Karin Dahlberg Margaretha Ekebergh Pamela M Ironside Kathryn Hopkins Kavanagh Melinda M Swenson Sharon L Sims Rosemary A McEldowney Jan D Sinnott Disability, Avoidance and the Academy David Bolt, Claire Penketh, 2017-07-14 Disability is a widespread phenomenon indeed a potentially universal one as life expectancies rise Within the academic world

it has relevance for all disciplines yet is often dismissed as a niche market or someone else's domain. This collection explores how academic avoidance of disability studies and disability theory is indicative of social prejudice and highlights conversely how the academy can and does engage with disability studies. This innovative book brings together work in the humanities and the social sciences and draws on the riches of cultural diversity to challenge institutional and disciplinary avoidance. Divided into three parts, the first looks at how educational institutions and systems implicitly uphold double standards which can result in negative experiences for staff and students who are disabled. The second part explores how disability studies informs and improves a number of academic disciplines from social work to performance arts. The final part shows how more diverse cultural engagement offers a way forward for the academy, demonstrating ways in which we can make more explicit the interdisciplinary significance of disability studies and by extension disability theory, activism, experience, and culture.

Disability Avoidance and the Academy: Challenging Resistance will interest students and scholars of disability studies, education studies, and cultural studies. Health Matters Eric Mykhalovskiy, Jacqueline Choiniere, Pat Armstrong, Hugh Armstrong, 2020-05-12. In Health Matters, contributors from a range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary traditions address multiple dimensions of health care such as nursing, midwifery, home care, pharmaceuticals, medical education, and palliative care. Through their explorations, the book poses questions about the role that the forms of expertise associated with evidence-based health care play in shaping how we understand and organize health services. Authors critique instrumental, managerial ways of knowing health care and focus on how such ways of knowing limit our understandings of and responses to health care problems and are linked with the growing commodification, individualization, and privatization of Canadian health services. Working with analytic perspectives such as feminism, Marxist political economy, critical ethnography, science and technology studies, governmentality studies, and institutional ethnography, the volume demonstrates how critical social science perspectives contribute alternative perspectives about what counts as health care problems and how to best to address them.

Progressing Critical Posthuman Perspectives in Health Sociology Kim McLeod, Simone Fullagar, 2024-08-16. This book shows the potential of posthuman thinking for rethinking health care experiences, subjects, and interventions. It explores a range of posthuman dilemmas across diverse health issues as contributors grapple with the ethical, ontological, and epistemological relations of knowing and doing health. The volume problematizes the rational, agentic individual as the key driver of health-related action and experience. Contributors move beyond long-held humanist assumptions about health, illness, and well-being and attune theoretically and methodologically to the entangled relations or ecologies that instantiate realities. They reimagine how care practices and healthcare experiences materialise through human-non-human relationality as biosocial environments. Chapters explore and articulate the agency of more-than-human entities in health-related processes to shed new light on health interventions, evaluations, and health policy. Taken together, the book highlights that although posthumanism enables health sociologists to progress particular agendas, it is essential to further problematise the posthuman decentring of the human by bringing sustained attention to bear on the ethical and political implications of this approach to knowledge making in health This field defining collection consolidates and builds momentum in the burgeoning area of posthuman thinking in health It will appeal to scholars and researchers seeking to understand health as a relational achievement better This book was originally published as a special issue of Health Sociology Review

Critical Issues in Social Work With Older People Mo G. Ray, Miriam Bernard, Judith Phillips, 2018-06-26 This timely text highlights the importance of informed and critical practice in social work with older people With an emphasis on reflection throughout it argues for the need to rethink how social workers support some of the most vulnerable people in society The text begins with an exploration of the relationship between gerontology the study of aging and social work and demonstrates that a gerontological approach has long been missing from social work practice The central chapters consider key issues affecting older people and social work practice such as Risk of poverty Memory loss and dementia Palliative and end of life care Loss and bereavement Moving into a care home Bringing together theoretical and research insights this agenda setting text provides a sound base for creative practice with older people All those looking to make a positive and discernible difference to older people will find this text rewarding reading

Introduction to Interdisciplinary Studies Allen F. Feminist Theories and Concepts in Healthcare Kay Aranda, 2017-09-10 Feminist theories and research approaches are committed to generating relevant morally accountable knowledge and understanding as well promoting social and political change Through them we have the potential to understand more fully the urgent global health concerns that individuals families and communities face on a daily basis This unique text provides students across a range of health care disciplines with a clear and accessible introduction to feminist theory and conceptual frameworks as well as how to apply them to health specific issues With a particular focus on students own qualitative research activities each chapter guides the reader through challenging and sometimes highly contentious theories with clarity and eloquence and demonstrates the ways in which feminist theories and research approaches can be used to help analyse the wide range of contemporary issues encountered by health practitioners daily This is a fascinating read for health science research students and practising health professionals or indeed anyone wishing to learn more about feminist theories and concepts within health care

development of a sociology of emotions is crucial to our understanding of social life as they hold the key to our understanding of social processes and sociological investigation First published in 1997 Emotions in Social Life consolidates the sociology of emotions as a legitimate and viable field of enquiry It provides a comprehensive assessment of the sociology of emotions using work from scholars of international stature as well as newer writers in the field It presents new empirical research in conjunction with innovative and challenging theoretical material and will be essential reading for students of sociology health psychology anthropology and gender studies Health Care & Public Policy George R. Palmer, Stephanie D. Short, 2000

Power and Conflict Between Doctors and Nurses Maureen A. Coombs, 2004-02-24 Through observations in three intensive care units this book draws on the reality of practice to explore how nurses and doctors work in intensive care settings It examines the power held by the competing knowledge bases the roles of the different professions the decision making process the sources of conflict the need for change Drawing together sociological theories and clinical practice Power and Conflict Between Doctors and Nurses explores the role of nurses in delivering contemporary health care It makes a strong case for interdisciplinary working and is particularly timely when health care policy is challenging work boundaries in health care Critical and Cultural Interactionism Michael Hviid Jacobsen, 2019-03-28

One of the longest standing traditions in sociology interactionism is concerned with studying human interaction and showing how society to a large part is constituted by patterns of interaction In spite of the work of figures such as Robert E Park Everett C Hughes Erving Goffman Herbert Blumer Norman K Denzin and Gary Alan Fine interactionism perhaps owing to its association with the perspective of symbolic interactionism remains something of an odd man out in mainstream sociology This book seeks to rectify this apparent neglect by bringing together critical social theories and microsociological approaches to research thus revealing the critical and cultural potentials in interactionism the chapters arguing that far from being oriented towards the status quo interactionism in fact contains a critical and cultural edge Presenting the latest work from some of the leading figures in interactionist thought to show recent developments in the field and offer an overview of some of the most potent and prominent ideas within critical and cultural criminology Critical and Cultural Interactionism will appeal to scholars of sociology with interests in interactionism social theory research methods and criminology Against Critical Thinking in Health, Social Care and Social Work Tom Grimwood, 2023-09-08 This book stages a provocative dialogue between social work health and social care and contemporary philosophy in order to inform theory and practice in a complex and challenging world Today the social world is marked by deep rooted complexities tensions and challenges Health workers and social workers are constantly reminded to employ critical thinking to navigate this world through their practice But given how many of these challenges pose significant problems for the theories that these subjects have traditionally drawn upon should we now be critical of critical thinking its assumptions its basis and its aspirations itself Arguing that health and social work theory must reconsider its deep rooted assumptions about criticality in order to navigate complex neoliberalism post truth and the relationship between language and late capitalism it examines how the fusion of theory and practice can re imagine critical thinking for health social care and social work It will be of interest to all scholars students and professionals
