Redcockaded Woodpecker Recovery Ecology And Management:

Red-cockaded Woodpecker David L. Kulhavy, Robert Guy Hooper, Ralph Costa, 1995 Red-cockaded Woodpecker Ralph Costa, Susan J. Daniels, 2004 Populations of the red cockaded woodpecker Picoides borealis have experienced massive declines since European colonization of North America This is due to extensive habitat loss and alteration Logging of old growth pine forests and alteration of the fire regime throughout the historic range of the species were the primary causes of population decline Listing of the red cockaded woodpecker under the Endangered Species Act of 1973 as amended and increased emphasis on management of non game species have resulted in efforts to recover remnant populations of the red cockaded woodpecker in many parts of its historic range Due to extensive research and adaptive management initiatives much is now known about the elements required for both short and long term management of viable populations of red cockaded woodpeckers A short term strategy is crucial because currently available habitat in nearly all populations is poor in 1 or more critical respects Consequently almost all populations require immediate attention in the short term to insure suitable midstory and understory conditions adequate availability of suitable cavities and restoration of demographic viability through improvements in number and distribution of breeding groups Management techniques including artificial cavities cavity entrance restrictors translocation of birds prescribed fire and mechanical and chemical control of woody vegetation are available to achieve these needs In the long term cost effective management of red cockaded woodpecker populations requires a timber management program and prescribed fire regime that will produce and maintain the stand structure characteristic of high quality nesting and foraging habitat so that additional intensive management specific to the woodpeckers is no longer necessary Timber management that achieves this goal and still allows substantial timber harvest is feasible The implementation of a red cockaded woodpecker management strategy as outlined above represents appropriate ecosystem management in the fire maintained pine ecosystems of the southeastern United States and will ultimately benefit a great number of additional species of plants and animals adapted to this ecosystem Management of the Red-cockaded Woodpecker and Its Habitat on National Forests in the Southern Region ,1995 Cooperative Breeding in Vertebrates Walter D. Koenig, Janis L. Dickinson, 2016-01-07 Brings together long term studies of cooperation in vertebrates that challenge our understanding of the evolution of social behavior Ouachita National Forest \(N.F.\), Renewal of the Shortleaf Pine/Bluestem Grass Ecosystem and the Recovery of the Red-cockaded Woodpecker, Scott County, Polk County ,1996 BRAC 2005 and Transformation Actions at Fort Benning ,2007 The Red-cockaded Woodpecker Richard Conner, D. Craig Rudolph, Jeffrey R. Walters, 2010-06-28 Though small among its woodpecker relatives the Red cockaded Woodpecker poses a huge dilemma for its human neighbors Uniquely adapted to live in the old growth pine forests of the southeastern United States the Red cockaded Woodpecker has nearly disappeared as the forests have been cleared for agricultural commercial and residential uses over the last two centuries Today it waits at a crossroads Scientific management practices could restore the woodpecker's habitat and population but the imperative to convert old growth forests to other uses remains. In this book three of the leading experts on the Red cockaded Woodpecker offer a comprehensive overview of all that is currently known about its biology and natural history and about the ecology of the fire maintained forests it requires for survival. As the most visible endangered species in the Southeast and the one whose conservation impacts the largest land area the Red cockaded Woodpecker holds a compelling interest not only for ornithologists but also for wildlife managers, foresters, developers, environmentalists and government officials. For all of these groups this book will be the essential resource for learning more about the Red cockaded Woodpecker and ensuring its survival. The Longleaf Pine

Ecosystem Shibu Jose, Eric J. Jokela, Deborah L. Miller, 2007-09-09 This book unites a wealth of current information on the ecology, silviculture and restoration of the Longleaf Pine ecosystem. The book includes a discussion of the significant historical, social and political aspects of ecosystem management making it a valuable resource for students, land managers, ecologists, private landowners, government agencies, consultants and the forest products industry. Defending Nature

Sneed B. Collard III, 2024-09-10 The United States Department of Defense has more than four hundred military bases across the country. They are used to house and train personnel, keep watch of enemies, support allies and protect America's plant and animal species. The Sikes Act of 1960 and the Endangered Species Act of 1973 require military bases to collaborate with federal land management agencies to protect the endangered or at risk species within their borders. On Eglin Air Force Base scientists and soldiers work together to study and manage endangered red cockaded woodpeckers, gopher tortoises and reticulated flatwoods salamanders. Discover the unique challenges endangered species face and the work the military is doing to protect them. Bankhead National Forest (N.F.), Forest Health and Restoration Project, 2003 General

Martin, Deborah M. Finch, 1995-10-19 The apparent decline in numbers among many species of migratory songbirds is a timely subject in conservation biology particularly for ornithologists, ecologists and wildlife managers. This book is an attempt to discuss the problem in full scope. It presents an ambitious comprehensive assessment of the current status of neotropical migratory birds in the U.S. and the methods and strategies used to conserve migrant populations. Each chapter is an essay reviewing and assessing the trend from a different viewpoint, all written by leaders in the fields of ornithology, conservation and population biology.
