Understanding History Teaching Chris Husbands,Alison Kitson,Anna Pendry,2003-09-16 Understanding History Teaching is an enjoyable read with a logical and flowing structure It lives up to its goal of appealing to both academic and professional readers with both academic depth and real insights and opportunities for the professional teacher to draw from It presents its data and interpretations in a manner which does not avoid the issues revealed within the research but has an uplifting effect on the reader and leaves them feeling optimistic about the quality of History teaching in UK secondary schools Robert Wyness Student De Montfort University Leicester UK Why do we teach and learn about the past How is history taught in schools What are the influences on the way teachers teach and pupils learn about the past History is one of the most ideologically disputed of school subjects Over the past generation the subject has experienced fundamental changes in content pedagogy and approach This book is the first detailed account of the way history is taught in schools to be published for 30 years Drawing on fieldwork in comprehensive schools and on research studies worldwide the authors pose fundamental questions about the way teachers teach and learners learn They consider its purposes on teaching about the past in a world of accelerating change The book sets out to explore the realities of classroom history teaching and to offer pointers for the development on the subject in a new century

Myths and Mythical Spaces Claudia Lichnofsky,Enriketa Pandelejmoni,Darko Stojanov,2017-12-04 This volume addresses textbooks written in the Albanian language and in use in Albania Kosovo Macedonia and Serbia Political myths and mythical spaces play a key role in shaping processes of identity building concepts of self and other and ideas pertaining to the location of the self and nation within a post conflict context The Albanian case is particularly interesting because the majority of Albanians live outside the borders of Albania despite the existence of the nation state which gives rise to fascinating complexities regarding the shaping of national identities and myths surrounding concepts of self and other What textbooks teach is always of political interest as they represent society's intentions for its next generation. This renders identity building processes via textbooks in this context a particularly fascinating topic for research here examined through the lens of myths and mythical spaces.

Geography Education Research in the UK: Retrospect and Prospect Graham Butt, 2019-08-22
This book provides a unique assessment of the development of research in geography education and its future prospects offering a challenging critique of subject based education research with particular reference to geography education across a range of different jurisdictions. It covers a range of topics including the changing role of research in geography education, the relationship between education research and professional practice with special reference to geography education research, the place of academic subject knowledge in geography education research, critiques of the functions of research in geography education and the key issues for education policy and policymakers concerning educational research at national and international levels. Importantly in a period marked by radical change for education research and researchers, the book offers a timely appraisal of possible ways forward for geography education research. Addressing the needs of academics, research students, policymakers and education practitioners who undertake, use or shape the future of research in geography education, it comprehensively explores the forces that have driven the development of geography education research and pedagogy. Further by positioning its analysis in the context of education policy debates in the UK and further afield, it assesses the role and function of research in education and offers an outlook on its future. This book is essential reading for all those who wish to understand the sporadic and increasingly uncertain development of subject based research in education.

Postcolonial Wales Jane Aaron, Chris Williams, 2005. A collection of diverse essays discussing the culture and politics of post devolution Wales. 10 black and white illustrations.

Constructing History 11-19 Hilary Cooper, Arthur Chapman, 2009-07-09. This book describes and exemplifies strategies for teaching history across the 11-19 age range in rigorous and enjoyable ways. It illustrates active learning approaches embedded in pupil led enquiries through detailed case studies which involve students in planning and carrying out historical enquiries, creating accounts and presenting them to audiences in ways that develop increasingly sophisticated historical thinking. The case studies took place in a number of different localities and show how practising teachers worked with pupils during each year from Y6-7 to Y13 to initiate, plan and implement enquiries and to present their findings in a variety of ways. Each case study is a practical example which teachers can use as a model and modify for their own contexts, showing how independent learning linked to group collaboration and peer assessment can enhance learning. Social constructivist theories of learning applied to historical thinking underpin the book with particular emphasis on links between personalised and collaborative learning and e-learning.

Handbook of Research in Social Studies Education Linda S. Levstik, Cynthia A. Tyson, 2010-04-15. This Handbook outlines the current state of research in social studies education, a complex dynamic challenging field with competing perspectives about appropriate goals and on-going conflict over the content of the curriculum. Equally important, it encourages new research in order to advance the field and foster civic competence long maintained by advocates for the social studies as a fundamental goal In considering how to organize the Handbook the editors searched out definitions of social studies statements of purpose and themes that linked or divided theory research and practices and established criteria for topics to include Each chapter meets one or more of these criteria research activity since the last Handbook that warrants a new analysis topics representing a major emphasis in the NCSS standards and topics reflecting an emerging or reemerging field within the social studies The volume is organized around seven themes Change and Continuity in Social Studies Civic Competence in Pluralist Democracies Social Justice and the Social Studies Assessment and Accountability Teaching and Learning in the Disciplines Information Ecologies Technology in the Social Studies Teacher Preparation and Development The Handbook of Research in Social Studies is a must have resource for all beginning and experienced researchers in the field
