Right To Dance Dancing For Rights:

Right to Dance Naomi M. Jackson, 2004 In terms of human rights organizations there appears to be intimate connections between dance and human rights issues Such connections appear most frequently in the context of dance being used as a tool for inciting people to violence as a means of humiliation and as a means of uniting communities in times of hardship Dance is often employed as a nationalistic propaganda tool as a means of healing individuals and groups after traumatic events and as a powerful form of theatrical expression and education by artists choreographers who have undergone or witnessed gross violations of human rights

Human Rights Albert A. Zinnos, 2007 Human rights refers to the concept of human beings as having universal rights or status regardless of legal jurisdiction and likewise other localising factors such as ethnicity and nationality For many the concept of human rights is based in religious principles However because a formal concept of human rights has not been universally accepted the term has some degree of variance between its use in different local jurisdictions difference in both meaningful substance as well as in protocols for and styles of application Ultimately the most general meaning of the term is one which can only apply universally and hence the term human rights is often itself an appeal to such transcended principles without basing such on existing legal concepts The term humanism refers to the developing doctrine of such universally applicable values and it is on the basic concept that human beings have innate rights that more specific local legal concepts are often based Within particular societies human rights refers to standards of behaviour as accepted within their respective legal systems regarding 1 the well being of individuals 2 the freedom and autonomy of individuals and 3 the representation of the human interest in government These rights commonly include the right to life the right to an adequate standard of living the prohibition of genocide freedom from torture and other mistreatment freedom of expression freedom of movement the right to self determination the right to education and the right to participation in cultural and political life These norms are based on the legal and political traditions of United Nations member states and are incorporated into international human rights instruments This new book brings together the latest book literature centred on this crucial topic
