Lost Architecture of the Rio Grande Borderlands W. Eugene George, 2008-06-24 Mexican settlers first came to the valley of the Rio Grande to establish their ranchos in the 1750s Two centuries later the Great River dammed in an international effort by the U S and Mexican governments to provide flood control and a more dependable water supply inundated twelve settlements that had been built there Under the waters of the new Falcon Reservoir lay homes businesses churches and cemeteries abandoned by residents on both sides of the river when the floods of 1953 filled the 115 000 acre area two years ahead of schedule The Smithsonian Institution the National Park Service and the University of Texas at Austin conducted an initial survey of the communities lost to the Falcon Reservoir but these studies were never completed or fully reported When architect W Eugene George came to the area in the 1960s he found a way of life waiting to be preserved in words photographs and drawings Two subsequent recessions of the reservoir in 1983 86 and again in 1996 98 gave George new access to one of the settlements Guerrero Viejo in Mexico Unfortunately the receding lake waters also made the village accessible to looters George's work then was crucial in documenting the indigenous architecture of these villages both as it existed prior to the flooding and as it remained before it was despoiled by vandals hands Lost Architecture of the Rio Grande Borderlands combines George's original 1975 Texas Historical Commission report with the information he gleaned during the two low water periods This handsome extended photographic essay casts new light on the architecture and lives of the people of the Texas Mexico borderlands

Periodical Source Index ,1992 Lizards on the Mantel, Burros at the Door Etta Koch,June Cooper Price,2010-07-05 A warm witty memoir of a young family s rugged adventure living in the newly established Big Bend National Park in the 1940s A woman who went West with her husband in the 1840s must have expected hardships and privation but during the 1940s when Etta Koch stopped off in Big Bend with her young family and a twenty three foot travel trailer in tow which they named Porky the Road Hog she anticipated a brief civilized camping trip between her old home in Ohio and a new one in

Arizona It was only when she found herself moving into an old rock house without plumbing or electricity in the new Big Bend National Park that Etta realized she'd left her sheltered life behind for an experience in frontier living In this book based on her journals and letters Etta Koch and her daughter June Cooper Price chronicle their family's first years 1944-1946 in the Big Bend Etta describes how her photographer husband Peter Koch became captivated by the region as a place for natural history filmmaking and how she and their three young daughters slowly adapted to a pioneer lifestyle during his months-long absences on the photo lecture circuit In vivid often humorous anecdotes she describes making the rock house into a home getting to know the Park Service personnel and other neighbors coping with the local wildlife and most of all learning to love the rugged landscape and the hardy individuals who call it home
