Donald S. Hair, 1999-12-15 What are the influences that shaped the language used by one of the nineteenth century's greatest writers How did his religious beliefs the books he owned the paintings and music he loved affect almost sixty years output of poems plays essays and letters This book attempts to define Browning's understanding of the nature and use of words and syntax by considering not only a full range of texts from the 1833 Pauline to the 1889 Asolando but also the ideas important to Browning the historical context in which he lived and the other artistic passions that played a part in his life In this companion volume to Tennyson's Language Donald Hair establishes Browning's place at the crossroads between empirical and idealist traditions and explains his double view of language arguing that both Locke and the Congregationalists found language to be at the same time empty and a God-given essential The Victorian age's anti-theatrical bias which Browning came to share and his reading of predecessors principally Quarles Bunyan Donne and Smart also shaped his understanding of the diction of poetry Hair conceives of Browning's language as a theoretical whole encompassing words genres rhyme syntax and phonetics He also links Browning's interest in music with his rhyming the most essential and characteristic feature of his prosody and relates his interest in painting to the interpretation of the visual image in the emblem and in typology

Century contains over 400 entries that treat a broad range of individual poets and poems along with many articles devoted to topics schools or periods of American verse in the century Entries fall into three main categories poet entries which provide biographical and cultural contexts for the author s career entries on individual works which offer closer explication of the most resonant poems in the 20th century canon and topical entries which offer analyses of a given period of literary production school thematically constructed category or other verse tradition that historically has been in dialogue with the poetry of the United States Browning, Victorian Poetics and the Romantic Legacy Dr Britta Martens, 2013-05-28 Taking an original approach to Robert Browning s poetics Britta Martens focuses on a corpus of relatively neglected poems in Browning s own voice in which he reflects on his poetry his self conceptualization and his place in the poetic tradition She analyzes his work in relation to Romanticism Victorian reactions to the Romantic legacy and wider nineteenth century changes in poetic taste to argue that in these poems as in his more frequently studied dramatic monologues Browning deploys varied dramatic methods of self representation often critically and ironically exposing the biases and limitations of the seemingly authoritative speaker Browning The poems thus become devices for Browning s detached evaluation of his own and of others poetics an evaluation never fully explicit but presented with elusive economy for the astute reader to interpret The confrontation between the personal authorial voice and the dramatic voice in these poems provides revealing insights into the poet s highly self conscious conflicted and sustained engagement with the Romantic tradition and the diversely challenging reader expectations that he faces in a post Romantic age As the Victorian most rigorous in his rejection of Romantic self expression Browning is a key transitional figure between the sharply antagonistic periods of Romanticism and Modernism He is also as Martens persuasively demonstrates a poet of complex contradictions and an illuminating case study for addressing the perennial issues of voice authorial authority and self reference
