Ou Men Work Through Lifelong Learning:

Policies, Politics and the Future of Lifelong Learning Ann Hodgson, 2013-12-16 This text focuses on the political context of lifelong learning It addresses the background European and policy elements of lifelong learning as well as providing a detailed consideration of the linkage of educational and political issues in this subject Researching Transitions in Lifelong Learning John Field, Jim Gallacher, Robert Ingram, 2009-06-03 Researching Transitions in Lifelong Learning presents new research from Britain Australia and North America The authors include leading scholars with established international reputations such as Kathryn Ecclestone Norton Grubb David Boud and Gert Biesta as well as emerging researchers with fresh and sometimes challenging perspectives OU Men Patricia W. Lunneborg, 1997 This book Patricia Lunneborg writes documents a brilliant way out for fifteen individuals of this Age of Uncertainty for men This way out is the Open University OU Men studies and documents the way that this remarkable institution has affected indeed empowered the lives of fifteen working men who hail from Manchester Preston and the East End but also from Iran India Uganda Ghana and Jamaica Lawry Rhodes studied Law at Nottingham University but failed his second year examinations He became a building society manager but found that his employers were more and more concerned with statistics and personal profit than with his interests or those of his customers He began to learn with the Open University Fearing for his job morally disgruntled but now with much study behind him he quit Today with a B A Lawry Rhodes is a high school English teacher and has published his poetry in a scholarly journal He is one of the men who here narrate their lives up to and through the experience of further education at the Open University The backdrop is the rapid and ruthless development in the world of work especially the male world of work in the second half of the twentieth century Through the interviews recorded here these men explain what education with the Open University has made possible for them in their different environments how it has affected not only their attitudes to work and their job prospects but also their relationships and often their values From this candid interview material Dr Lunneborg develops a wide ranging analysis of the relationships between employment education and personal life in contemporary Britain Drawing upon the work of Charles Handy Jeremy Rifkin and Will Hutton she analyses the phenomena of downsizing job dissatisfaction presenteeism the compulsion to work absurdly long hours and the threat of obsolescence drawing out a cautiously optimistic prognosis Education alone can develop the portable skills portfolio that forms the basis for a lifelong and manageable working life Yet no less important the author urges is the willingness to detach male identities from paid employment and to learn to bend our increased flexibility to the needs and opportunities of community service OU Men will interest the ever increasing number of people involved in or considering an OU course or any other distance learning programme It will also be of value to those involved in the teaching and psychology of distance learning and to anyone concerned with the anatomy of contemporary Britain and the ongoing changes in the world labour market An inspiring and powerful book the stories of these OU men pack a tremendous punch of optimism and hope These inspiring stories contain some wonderful vignettes of modern life From the Foreword by Sir John Daniel Vice Chancellor of The Open University Rethinking Learner Support in Distance Education Roger Mills, Alan Tait, 2004-08-02 Distance learning is becoming an increasingly popular way of studying and most universities now provide courses using these methods Today's students though are demanding high quality consumer focused and flexible courses as well as learning resources and active learner support This means that providers of distance education need to reconsider key issues about their learner support systems ensuring that this is delivered appropriately and effectively Considering the changing needs and demands of distance education students this book draws together contributions from the UK USA Hong Kong Australia Japan South Africa and Botswana to offer an international perspective on the challenges and opportunities of Information and Communication Technologies ICT quality assurance commercialisation and the learner as consumer the impact on learners of cultural differences on internationalised curricula the implications for learner support of a wider range of learners This book should be read by all those involved in developing and delivering distance education courses Retirement, Work, and Lifelong Learning United States. Congress. Senate. Special Committee on Aging, 1979 Gender, Masculinities and Lifelong Learning Marion Bowl, Robert Tobias, Jennifer Leahy, Graeme Ferguson, Jeffrey Gage, 2013-03-05 Gender Masculinities and Lifelong Learning reflects on current debates and discourses around gender and education in which some academics practitioners and policy makers have referred to a crisis of masculinity This book explores questions such as Are men under represented in education Are women outstripping men in terms of achievement What evidence supports the view that men are becoming educationally disadvantaged Drawing on research from a number of countries including the UK Australia New Zealand and Canada the contributors discuss a range of issues which intersect with gender to impact on education including structural factors such as class ethnicity and age as well as colonisation and migration The book provides evidence and argument to illuminate contemporary debates about the involvement of men and women in education including The impact of colonisation on the gendering of education and lifelong learning International surveys on men women and educational participation Gender masculinities and migrants learning experiences Boys only classes as a response to the problem of underachieving boys Men's perspectives on learning to become parents Community learning gender and public policy Older men's perspectives on re entering post compulsory education The book goes on to suggest the implications for practice research and policy Importantly it critically addresses some of the taken for granted beliefs about men and their engagement in lifelong learning presenting new evidence to demonstrate the complexity of gender and education today With these complexities in mind the authors provide a framework for developing further understanding of the issues involved with gender and lifelong learning Gender Masculinities and Lifelong Learning will be of interest to any practitioner open to fresh ideas and approaches in teaching and programming connected with gender and education The Open University Daniel Weinbren, 2015-11-01 This historical perspective on The Open University founded in 1969 frames its ethos to be open to people places methods and ideas within the traditions of correspondence courses commercial television adult education the post war social democratic settlement and the Cold War A critical assessment of its engagement with teaching assessment and support for adult learners offers an understanding as to how it came to dominate the market for part time studies It also indicates how as the funding and status of higher education shifted it became a loved brand and a model for universities around the world Drawing on previously ignored or unavailable records personal testimony and recently digitised broadcast teaching materials it recognises the importance of students to the maintenance of the university and places the development of learning and the uses of technology for education over the course of half a century within a wider social and economic perspective Strategies for Sustainable Open and Distance Learning Andrea Hope, Patrick Guiton, 2006 Adaptability and the ability to handle rapid and ongoing change are essential for successfully managing any modern educational enterprise and open and distance learning is no exception In an often over looked field this volume examines the nature of sustainability in open and distance learning using case material from a wide range of current educational contexts worldwide The books themes include reflection and analysis of the management of change collaboration staff development quality assurance and funding in an increasingly globalized environment This book also reassesses the core processes The Oxford Handbook of Lifelong Learning Manuel London, 2011-03-11 The Oxford Handbook of Lifelong Learning is a comprehensive and interdisciplinary examination of the theory and practice of lifelong learning encompassing perspectives from human resources development adult learning psychology career and vocational learning management and executive development cultural anthropology the humanities and gerontology Degrees of Freedom Rod Earle, James Mehigan, 2019-12-18 The first authoritative volume to look back on the last 50 years of The Open University providing higher education to those in prison this unique book gives voice to ex prisoners whose lives have been transformed by the education they received Offering vivid personal testimonies reflective vignettes and academic analysis of prison life and education in prison the book marks the 50th anniversary of The Open University Innovations in Lifelong Learning Sue Jackson, 2010-12-13 Pt 1 Learning communities pt 2 Participation and non participation pt 3 Work based learning and learning through work
