Stress in policing remains a serious concern for individual officers their families their organizations and society at large As an editor of the Psychological and Behavioural Aspects of Risk series Ronald J Burke brings together the latest research findings and intervention strategies shown to be effective by an international group of experts The contributors comprise of a group of high profile researchers and writers who are experts in their respective fields This edited collection addresses such issues as The increased risk of international terrorism Racial profiling Police Culture Police integrity Police suicide Inadequate police training The work of police officers exposes them to sources of stress that increase several risks in terms of their psychological and physical health their family relationships physical injuries emotional trauma ambiguity about their roles in society Shift work and undercover work add additional burdens to officers and their families Police work also places risks on the communities in which officers serve in terms of officers being inadequately trained to deal with mentally ill citizens The Police and the Community Louis A. Radelet,Hoyt Coe Reed,1973 The Canadian Criminal Justice System Nick Larsen,1995 The administration of justice is an area of social policy that defies attempts to achieve a balance between order and the protection of the public and respect for individual rights The media contain daily accounts of the failure of the criminal justice system to repress crime It is within this social and legal context that this work is situated In addition to including a range of articles in the standard areas of policing courts and corrections recent articles deal with such controversial issues as aboriginal justice the recruitment of visible minorities by Canadian police forces and the role of women in the Canadian criminal justice system The collection concludes with a critical assessment of the retributive model that currently serves as the philosophical underpinnings of the Canadian criminal justice system Police, Criminal Justice, and the Community Alan Edward Bent,Ralph A. Rossum,1976 This book focuses on the relations of the community not only with the police but also with the other components of the criminal justice system and advances a theoretical and practical justification for police community relations The book was written as a primary textbook for college students in courses on police community relations In addition to its focus on the entire criminal justice system and its sustained justification of police community relations on the basis of the political principles of majority rule and minority rights this book also emphasizes the need for political and social realism It stresses that police community relations are in fact two way communication and that even when the police and courts and corrections as well fully appreciate the need for improved relations with the community all of their insights and efforts may well be for naught if there is not a reciprocal and equal response and commitment to police community relations on the part of the community National Evaluation of the COPS Program Jeffrey A.
