Capital, Coercion, and Postcommunist States Gerald M. Easter, 2012-09-18 The postcommunist transitions produced two very different types of states The contractual state is associated with the countries of Eastern Europe which moved toward democratic regimes consensual relations with society and clear boundaries between political power and economic wealth The predatory state is associated with the successors to the USSR which instead developed authoritarian regimes coercive relations with society and poorly defined boundaries between the political and economic realms In Capital Coercion and Postcommunist States Gerald M Easter shows how the cumulative result of the many battles between state coercion and societal capital over taxation gave rise to these distinctive transition outcomes Easter s fiscal sociology of the postcommunist state highlights the interconnected paths that led from the fiscal crisis of the old regime through the revenue bargains of transitional tax regimes to the eventual reconfiguration of state society relations His focused comparison of Poland and Russia exemplifies postcommunism s divergent institutional forms The Polish case shows how conflicts over taxation influenced the emergence of a rule of law contractual state social market capitalism and civil society The Russian case reveals how revenue imperatives reinforced the emergence of a rule by law predatory state concessions style capitalism and dependent society

The Transformation of Property Regimes and Transitional Justice in Central Eastern Europe

Invisible Hands, Russian Experience, and Social Science Stefan Hedlund, 2011-06-20 This book investigates cases in which national and international activities have gone massively wrong entailing seriously negative consequences and in which the sophisticated analytical models of social science have ceased to be helpful Illustrations range from the global financial crisis to the failure to achieve speedy systemic change in the former Soviet Union and the failure to achieve development in the Third World The analysis uses as a backdrop long term Russian history and short term Russian encounters with unrestrained capitalism to develop a framework that is based in the so called new institutionalism Understanding the causes of systemic failure is shown to require an approach that spans across the increasingly specialized subdisciplines of modern social science Demonstrating that increasing theoretical sophistication has been bought at the price of a loss of perspective and the need for sensitivity to the role of cultural and historical specificity the book pleads the case for a new departure in seeking to model the motives for human action

Transition, Taxation and the State Dr Gerard Turley, 2012-10-01 In economic terms three of the most important and controversial issues of our times are transition taxation and the role of the state This book examines the core associated problems of tax payment and collection in the context of transition from a centrally planned economy to a market economy and the persistence of the soft budget constraint While differences between the experiences of transition states vary the attitude of the state towards the control of the tax discipline its efficiency and vulnerability to corruption is shown to be a key issue in particular when political constraints are often more pressing than tax design or economic constraints Transition Taxation and the State will prove detailed and enlightening reading for all those concerned with tax administration in transition countries from both economic and political perspectives country's economic planning and therefore its commercial law. Past enlargements are thoroughly explained and the potential impact of the new political landscape in Europe in the wake of the popular rejection of the European Constitutional Treaty on future enlargements is evaluated.
