Zion, 2005-09-01 Navajo peacemaking is one of the most renowned restorative justice programs in the world Neither mediation nor alternative dispute resolution it has been called a horizontal system of justice because all participants are treated as equals with the purpose of preserving ongoing relationships and restoring harmony among involved parties In peacemaking there is no coercion and there are no sides No one is labeled the offender or the victim the plaintiff or the defendant This is a book about peacemaking as it exists in the Navajo Nation today describing its origins history context and contributions with an eye toward sharing knowledge between Navajo and European based criminal justice systems It provides practitioners with information about important aspects of peacemaking such as structure procedures and outcomes that will be useful for them as they work with the Navajo courts and the peacemakers It also offers outsiders the first one volume overview of this traditional form of justice The collection comprises insights of individuals who have served within the Navajo Judicial Branch voices that authoritatively reflect peacemaking from an insider's point of view It also features an article by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and includes contributions from other scholars who with the cooperation of the Navajo Nation have worked to bring a comparative perspective to peacemaking research In addition some chapters describe the personal journey through which peacemaking takes the parties in a dispute demonstrating that its purpose is not to fulfill some abstract notion of Justice but to restore harmony so that the participants are returned to good relations Navajo Nation Peacemaking seeks to promote both peacemaking and Navajo common law development By establishing the foundations of the Navajo way of natural justice and offering a vision for its future it shows that there are many lessons offered by Navajo peacemaking for those who want to approach old problems in sensible new ways Elements of Peacemaking Revolutions Sapir Handelman, 2021-09-24 Intractable conflict is a protracted violent and long time struggle wherein generation after generation is socially conditioned to continue fighting To break the chain of destruction a revolutionary peacemaking process is required This book serves as an introduction to the study of peacemaking revolutions which are necessary to build a peaceful and well functioning society in desperate intractable conflict situations The challenge of peacemaking revolution is to turn opposing parties into a peacemaking community A peacemaking community offers political platforms to involve the different societal elements of the opposing parties in the struggle for change It offers a consensus building process that approaches the conflict from different sides dimensions and directions This book provides a fresh perspective to the study of destructive social conflicts their transformation and resolution It will serve to provoke a critical discussion among those who are interested in the new emerging study of peacemaking revolutions Peacemaking by Democracies Norrin M. Contributions to the Study of Peacemaking United States Institute of Peace,1992 Contributions to the Study of Peacemaking ,1996 Negotiating Reconciliation in Peacemaking Valerie Rosoux,Mark Anstey,2017-11-01 This book offers a unique approach to reconciliation as a matter for negotiation bringing together two bodies of theory in order to offer insights into resolving conflicts and achieving lasting peace It argues that reconciliation should not be simply accepted as an agreed upon norm within peacemaking processes but should receive serious attention from belligerents and peace brokers seeking to end violent conflicts through negotiation The book explores different meanings the term reconciliation might hold for parties in conflict the end of overt hostilities a transformation in the quality of relations between warring groups a vehicle of accountability and punishment of human rights abusers or the means through which they might somehow acquire amnesty and as a means of atonement and to material reparation It considers what gives energy to the idea of reconciliation in a conflict situation why do belligerents become interested in settling their differences and changing their attitudes to one another Using a range of case studies and thematic discussion chapters in this book seek to tackle these tough questions from a multidisciplinary perspective Contributions to the book reveal some of the complexities of national and international reconciliation projects but particularly diverse understandings of reconciliation and how to achieve it All conflicts reflect unique dynamics aspirations and power realities It is precisely because parties in conflict differ in expectations of reconciliation outcomes that its processes should be negotiated This book is a valuable resource for both scholars and practitioners engaged in resolving conflicts and transforming fragmented relations in conflict and post conflict situations
