James Roger Townsend, 1969 Political Participation in Beijing Tianjian Shi, 1997 In this first scientific survey of political participation in the People's Republic of China Tianjian Shi identifies twenty eight participatory acts and groups them into seven areas voting campaign activities appeals adversarial activities cronyism resistance and boycotts What he finds will surprise many observers Political participation in a closed society is not necessarily characterized by passive citizens driven by regime mobilization aimed at carrying out predetermined goals Beijing citizens acknowledge that they actively engage in various voluntary participatory acts to articulate their interests In a society where communication channels are controlled by the government Shi discovers access to information from unofficial means becomes the single most important determinant for people's engaging in participatory acts Government sponsored channels of appeal are easily accessible to ordinary citizens so socioeconomic resources are unimportant in determining who uses these channels Instead voter turnout is found to be associated with the type of work unit a person belongs to subjective evaluations of one's own economic status and party affiliation Those most likely to engage in campaign activities adversarial activities cronyism resistance and boycotts are the more disadvantaged groups in Beijing While political participation in the West fosters a sense of identification the unconventional modes of participation in Beijing undermine the existing political order

Political Participation in Communist China, Mass Political Participation in Communist China James Roger Townsend, 1965 Generational Differences in Political Attitudes and Political Behaviour in China Tianjian Shi, 1999 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China The article provides an appraisal of the changes among different age groups that would help us understand the change in Chinese society

Political Culture and Participation in Rural China Yang Zhong, 2013-06-17 Despite China's rapid urbanisation and industrialisation most Chinese still live in the vast countryside or have rural household registration Although there was significant economic improvement in rural areas in the 1980s the rural economy has been stagnating or deteriorating since then and the book argues that the rural urban income gap is giving rise to the potential for political instability throughout China This book based on extensive original research including interview fieldwork in rural areas examines the nature of political culture and participation in rural China discussing issues such as the support or lack of it for democratic values levels of political interest the ways in which Chinese peasants interact with village and local officials subjective factors that motivate them to vote or not to vote in village elections and rural people's views on market oriented economic reforms local and national government and the

Communist Party The book argues that although hitherto peasants riots sit ins and demonstrations have been localised and uncoordinated they are frequent and have the potential to cause serious political crises for China s rulers It concludes by considering the future political development of China s vast countryside Political Participation in Communist Systems American Political Science Association,1981 Support for Economic and Political Change in the China Countryside Samuel James Eldersveld,Mingming Shen,2001-01-01 Samuel J Eldersveld and Mingming Shen the authors of this important two wave study illuminate a unique and richly contoured view of Chinese attitudes about political and economic reform They base their findings on the responses of a panel of over 800 mass respondents approximately 1 300 interviews with villagers and 250 interviews with cadres The authors provide extensive analysis of their data and find that the level of popular support for reform and support for democratic values is surprisingly high Of particular interest is the examination of support for political specifically citizen participation contacting officials attending party and village meetings and voting for village committees The authors find significant variance in mass and cadres beliefs but Eldersveld and Shen s findings provide impressive new data for the study of economic and political development in China and the possibility of democracy in the future Social Change and Political Participation in Turkey Ergun Ozbudun,2015-03-08 Scholars have long argued that political participation tends to increase with economic and social modernization In this study of Turkey however the author shows that rapid socio economic growth has coincided with a substantial decline in turnout at the polls His ecological analysis of subnational aggregate voting data for the sixties and the explanation of his startling findings form the core of this up to date and comprehensive survey of Turkey s political development Turkey is one of very few countries to combine rapid socio economic change with a democratic system The author demonstrates that in this context modernization tends to increase autonomous instrumental and class based political participation and to decrease mobilized deferential and communal based political participation The topics he examines include social cleavages and the party system distribution of land and income geographical and social mobility access to education regional variations in voting turnout urban rural differences in voting behavior socio economic correlates of voting activity and party votes and patterns of participation among peasants and the urban poor Originally published in 1977 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 The Cambridge History of China Roderick MacFarquhar,John King Fairbank,1987 Citizens and Groups in Contemporary China Victor Falkenheim,2020-08-06 Citizens and Groups in Contemporary China began with two symposia held in 1977 and 1978 The first a workshop on The Pursuit of Interest in China was held in August 1977 at the University of Michigan and was organized by Michel Oksenberg and Richard Baum It was supported by a grant from the Joint Committee on Contemporary China of the Social Science Research Council and the American Council of Learned Societies using funds provided by the Andrew Mellon Foundation Its principal goal was to use detailed case studies to explore the relevance of interest group approaches to the study of Chinese politics The second a panel organized by the editor for the 1978 Chicago meeting of the Association of Asian Studies sought to apply participatory approaches to the role of social groups in the Chinese political process The striking degree of overlap in the focus methodology and participants in both meetings suggested to a number of the paper writers that there was a need for a more eclectic approach which would focus simultaneously on individual and group actors The recognition that a volume based on such an approach might serve the needs of students and scholars seeking to examine the dynamics of informal influence and power in China was the stimulus for publishing the studies presented here in book form ix
