market economics In the advanced industrial countries and in Israel globalization is largely viewed in economic terms the free movement of goods services labor and capital across borders In the Arab MENA however globalization is viewed in largely ideological terms and has been regarded as a new version of imperialism Consequently the Arab MENA region remains one of the most un globalized regions in the world The book serves as both a textbook and a summary of the very large literature on MENA It examines the following economic realities of the region and compares them across the MENA economies Technology gap and comparative developmentThe value of education and human capital developmentWater and food securityThe economics and politics of oilPopulation growth role of gender and labor mobilityThe role of the state as economic actorThe economic value of democracyThe prospects for regional integration      Current Account Deficits, External Liabilities and Economic Policy Mr.J. D. Pitchford,1992-07-01 This paper assesses the policy significance of foreign liabilities and the current account deficits that give rise to them Current account imbalances are shown to have some capacity to indicate difficulties elsewhere in the economy but are imperfect indicators and subject to potential misinterpretation The paper concludes that successful pursuit of internal balance could be an important factor in stabilizing current account balances but beyond that there seems no good reason for using macroeconomic policy to target the current account as such However there may be grounds for microeconomic action to remedy specifically identified problems
