The numbers involved are significant, and could result in billions of pounds being lost to the Treasury if a number of people had decided they wanted to

Some people did manage to take advantage of the loophole to move their complete they will need to consider what to do with their pension next.

James McLeish, head of pensions at AEs International, said: "These people lucky enough to have squeezed through HMRC's ultimate cut off point on September 7 will now have almost complete control over their pensions, for the first time."

"The list of investments permitted under the Regs (the new name for Group) legislation is very similar to that offered under the UK's SIPP rules and so is very wide indeed."

"Investors will be able to build an investment portfolio which should allow them to continue to grow their capital, while also taking an income - although this of course depends very much on the size of the pot to begin with. The major

"Experts should not delay in exploring the options available to them. It is also more important than ever to retain specialist financial advice. It is not enough to assume that a particular course of action may or may not be possible or prudent."

"The same kind of firms will simply extend their relationships to meet the other required parties."

"From the client's perspective, this is unlikely to be favourable. An unwieldy arrangement take on board and understood advice where it runs concurrently from one point to another."

"Receiving four or five different but connected documents, and having to pull them all together to understand the overall position, is difficult for anybody to do."

"Thanks to the increasingly complicated nature of UK pension transfers overseas, this is certainly not something that you should undertake without first seeking some advice on the subject from an expert."
