Early Naval Air Power Dennis Haslop, 2018-01-03 This book examines the British and German approach to naval air power describing the creation and development of the two naval air service organizations and doctrine This work provides new insights as to how two naval air services were influenced by internal and political interventions and how each was integrated into the organizational structures of the Royal Navy and the Kaiserliche Marine KM Both the Admiralty and the KM made substantial alterations to their organizations and doctrine in the process Principal air doctrines employed are examined chronologically and the application of operational doctrine is described While they adopted similar air doctrines there were differences in operational doctrine which they addressed according to their different requirements This book is a comparative study about the development of organization and air power doctrine in the RNAS Royal Naval Air Service and the IGNAS Imperial German Naval Air Service It investigates public and political interventions and early concepts of air power placing into context the factors which contributed to how naval theorists came to think about the best means of controlling its working medium air space Ultimately it examines the similarities and differences between the RNAS and IGNAS understanding of naval air power within the broader strategic and theoretical framework of their parent organizations This book will be of great interest to students of air power naval power military history strategic studies and IR in general

Carrier Operations in World War II J D Brown, 2009-05-21 Between 1939 and 1945 the Royal Navy's Fleet Air Arm grew from a small force into a powerful strategic weapon British carrier based aircraft fought throughout the world and David Brown here describes their activities in the Home Mediterranean Eastern and British Pacific Fleets together with Forces created for specific operations listing aircraft and units embarked during the various phases He goes on to describe carrier operations in the Pacific between 1941 and 1945 the greatest maritime war in history Both the United States and Imperial Japanese Navies watched the Royal Navy's early carrier operations in the European Theatre and benefited from the lessons American aircrews and sailors learnt quickly in action until by March 1945 the United States Fifth Fleet with its associated Marine Corps formations was probably the most efficient and effective instrument of war deployed in the pre nuclear age This new work contains material from two volumes first published in 1968 and 1974 merged with notes for a third which David Brown prepared but never published before his death They appear for the first time together providing the most detailed single volume account currently available of the operation of British American and Japanese aircraft carriers in World War II

Canadian Squadrons in Coastal Command Andrew Hendrie, 1997 During the war Canadian squadrons flew hundreds of operations over the North Atlantic the English Channel the North Sea and the Bay of Biscay Such operations included reconnaissance flights as well as shipping strikes to Norway the Netherlands and the French coast The Canadians proved themselves admirably despite heavy losses some of the heaviest of the war From a force of some 4 000 officers and airmen and 270 aircraft at the beginning of the war the RCAF had within four months doubled in strength with 8

287 officers and airmen and 14 operational squadrons in Canada In all 48 RCAF squadrons had served overseas by the end of the war This comprehensive study covers every success achieved by Canadian squadrons listed in Coastal Command s records for World War II including attacks on U boats and enemy controlled vessels Each operation is reported in meticulous detail from the time of departure current weather hours flown and crew involved to a description of the action itself The Defeat of the Enemy Attack upon Shipping, 1939-1945 Eric J.
