Relationships Between Generalizing and Justifying Amy B Ellis, 2004 This dissertation explicates the nature of the relationships between students acts of generalizing and acts of justifying A new generalization framework supports the development of these relationships This cohesive categorization system differentiates the types of generalizations students construct when reasoning mathematically The framework accounts for multiple levels of generalizing and distinguishes between statements of generalization and the generalizing actions that lead to those statements The framework in concert with Harel and Sowder s 1998 taxonomy of proof schemes generated direct links between types of generalizations and associated proof schemes as well as more complex relationships revealing how the two acts mutually influence one another Research examining students ability to generalize and justify suggests that students experience severe difficulty in creating and using appropriate generalizations and proofs A review of the rich body of literature documenting students errors highlights the need to examine more thoroughly what students do understand to be general and convincing This study extends Lobato s 2003 actor oriented transfer perspective to examine the ways in which middle school students generalized during units on linear functions Qualitative analysis of clinical interviews and teaching experiment data focused on identifying and categorizing students generalizations proof schemes and the relationships between acts of generalizing and justifying Results include six hypotheses of direct links between particular categories of generalizations and particular proof schemes The study also identifies five dimensions across which students generalizations and justifications mutually interact to support increasingly sophisticated reasoning a cycles of generalizing actions and generalization products b the role of students attention focus c generalizations that promote the transformational proof scheme d the role of justification as explaining why and e generalizations supported by justifying via the transformational proof scheme The dimensions provide a way to account for the evolution of students generalizing and justifying Analysis of the data revealed that reasoning with emergent quantities constructed from ratios of two initial quantities is connected to more powerful generalizing and justifying than that seen when students reason with number patterns
