Steam in Scotland Kevin McCormack,2018-07-30

Kevin McCormack has written a large number of transport books mainly using previously unpublished material much of it sourced from the Online Transport Archive This his latest colour album covers the railways of Scotland in steam days and concentrates as much as possible on depicting older types of locomotives Consequently this volume contains a large amount of rare 1950s colour images often depicting areas of the Scottish railway system that were later closed or cut back during the Beeching era The pictures in this book were taken by enthusiasts who had the good fortune to be able to afford colour film at a time when such luxuries were very expensive to the average enthusiast All the photographers concerned travelled far and wide in Scotland with their cameras at a time just before most of the lines closed between 1953 1967 The result of all this effort is a fine collection of very rare images depicting a lost period of railway operation in a beautiful and picturesque part of Britain

British Diesel Locomotives of the 1950s and '60s Greg Morse,2016-07-28 After the Second World War the drive for the modernisation of Britain s railways ushered in a new breed of locomotive the Diesel Diesel powered trains had been around for some time but faced with a coal crisis and the Clean Air Act in the 1950s it was seen as a part of the solution for British Rail This beautifully illustrated book written by an expert on rail history charts the rise and decline of Britain s diesel powered locomotives It covers a period of great change and experimentation where the iconic steam engines that had dominated for a century were replaced by a series of modern diesels including the ill fated Westerns and the more successful Deltics

British Railways in the 1950s and '60s Greg Morse,2012-09-20 As Britain moved from austerity to prosperity in the 1950s and 1960s it became clear that British Railways needed to modernise its equipment and rationalise its network if it was to hold its own in the face of growing competition from road and air transport After attempting to maintain pre war networks and technology in the 1950s a reversal of policy in the 1960s brought line closures new liveries and the last breath of steam as Dr Beeching and his successors strove to break even and build a new business from the old From Britannia to the Blue Pullman Evening Star to Inter City Greg Morse takes us through this turbulent twenty year period which started with drab prospects and ended with BR poised to launch the fastest diesel powered train in the world

From Immigrants to Ethnic Minority Lorna Chessum, 2017-07-05 While there is an extensive sociological literature concerning race relations racial discrimination and the process of migration this has tended to focus on snapshots at a given moment in time There are few historical accounts of the development of black communities in Britain This book will be the first social history of a black community in modern times which attempts to weave many aspects of life together to give a more comprehensive understanding of the lives of black people in Britain The book will address the way peoples lives are constructed through racialized identities and how African Caribbean people in Leicester relate to the wider community It provides an important contribution to the debate concerning the social class profile of different ethnic groups The work is gendered throughout and discusses the different nature of the experiences of men and women The 1991 census shows Leicester to have the highest proportion of ethnic minority residents of any city outside London however compared to other cities with black and Asian communities it has received little attention from academics The present study charts the development of Leicester s African Caribbean community from its origins in the Second World War to 1981 and its changing construction from immigrants to ethnic minority
