Clopper, 2001-05 How was it possible for drama especially biblical representations to appear in the Christian West given the church's condemnation of the theatrum of the ancient world In a book with radical implications for the study of medieval literature Lawrence Clopper resolves this perplexing question Drama Play and Game demonstrates that the theatrum repudiated by medieval clerics was not theater as we understand the term today Clopper contends that critics have misrepresented Western stage history because they have assumed that theatrum designates a place where drama is performed While theatrum was thought of as a site of spectacle during the Middle Ages the term was more closely connected with immodest behavior and lurid forms of festive culture Clerics were not opposed to liturgical representations in churches but they strove ardently to suppress May games ludi festivals and liturgical parodies Medieval drama then stemmed from a more vernacular tradition than previously acknowledged one developed by England's laity outside the boundaries of clerical rule This Book We Call the Bible James E. of restrictive Hollywood censorship regulations filmmakers throughout history have pushed the boundaries of sex and violence when making religious films In this unrivaled text author and educator Richard Lindsay analyzes the relationship between bible based epics and camp films with overwrought acting casts of thousands and exotic sexuality Lindsay presents the ways in which camp style identifies films as biblical in the mainstream imagination while undermining their traditional religious messages through the inclusion of sexually diverse subtexts Viewed through this lens this provocative book explores topics like the Jazz Age excesses of The King of Kings the pre code decadence of The Sign of the Cross the horror movie tropes of The Passion of the Christ and comparisons between Ben Hur and the gay male fantasies of 1960s beefcake magazines Additional content features the history of biblical epics and a comparison of the pious expectations of filmgoers against the real content of the films
