Activists in City Hall Pierre Clavel,2013-02-01 In 1983 Boston and Chicago elected progressive mayors with deep roots among community activists Taking office as the Reagan administration was withdrawing federal aid from local governments Boston s Raymond Flynn and Chicago s Harold Washington implemented major policies that would outlast them More than reforming governments they changed the substance of what the government was trying to do above all to effect a measure of redistribution of resources to the cities poor and working classes and away from hollow goals of growth as measured by the accumulation of skyscrapers In Boston Flynn moderated an office development boom while securing millions of dollars for affordable housing In Chicago Washington implemented concrete measures to save manufacturing jobs against the tide of national policy and trends Activists in City Hall examines how both mayors achieved their objectives by incorporating neighborhood activists as a new organizational force in devising debating implementing and shaping policy Based in extensive archival research enriched by details and insights gleaned from hours of interviews with key figures in each administration and each city s activist community Pierre Clavel argues that key to the success of each mayor were numerous factors productive contacts between city hall and neighborhood activists strong social bases for their agendas administrative innovations and alternative visions of the city Comparing the experiences of Boston and Chicago with those of other contemporary progressive cities Hartford Berkeley Madison Santa Cruz Santa Monica Burlington and San Francisco Activists in City Hall provides a new account of progressive urban politics during the Reagan era and offers many valuable lessons for policymakers city planners and progressive political activists

Making Politics Work Paul T. Hill, Ashley E. Jochim, 2025-03-31 An expansive study shows how politics can work for not just against

efforts to improve America's schools. The education reform project has always been about making America's schools more effective for the children who attend them. In Making Politics Work, authors Paul T. Hill and Ashley E. Jochim show that this project cannot succeed without mastering what is the single largest constraint on its success: politics. Drawing upon more than a decade of work with dozens of school systems, Hill and Jochim show how failures to secure political support or mitigate inevitable opposition doom the education reform project from the start. But this outcome is not inevitable. By tracing the evolution of the portfolio strategy across 27 localities that implemented it, they uncover practical lessons that superintendents, state leaders, and foundation officials can use to increase the likelihood that their ideas for improving public education don't join the list of once-promising initiatives that could not be sustained in the face of intractable political conflict.
