The University as a Partner in Regional and International Development: Ian McAllister, 2015-04-23 To be credible partners overseas universities must be credible partners for the well being of the peoples of their own regions Canadian universities have enjoyed long and productive histories of both regional and international cooperation Many were nurtured through early relationships with longer standing European and US institutions Especially since Canada became a serious aid donor in the early 1970s Canadian universities in their turn began to share experiences and resources overseas Initially this was with institutions in less prosperous nations then particularly since the fall of the Berlin Wall it was also with partners in the transition economies of Eastern Europe Most recently it has been with China and a resurgent India Often a university's regional and international linkages began with individual faculty or student commitments Some then evolved into projects frequently four or five year contractual arrangements supported by aid agencies A few such projects later expanded into more open ended network arrangements bridging disciplines sectors institutions and sometimes even continents The more complex some of these partnerships have become the more challenging have been the ethical academic and financial implications for the Canadian institutions themselves not to mention their counterparts Long term more visionary and more strategic approaches have become critical More entrepreneurial administrative structures and much heightened sensitivities to human rights cross cultural gender and inter disciplinary issues have been essential What it must ruthlessly be asked are the visions for post secondary education for 2020 not to mention 2050 that are empowering the more progressive of today's institutions How are they helping shape present regional and international development partnerships makers are increasingly striving to strengthen the economic competitiveness of their cities. Currently they do that mainly in the field of the creative knowledge economy: arts, media, entertainment, creative business services, architecture, publishing, design, and ICT. R cities with different economies and industries: port based cities and land locked cities. And all 13 have different cultural, political, and welfare state traditions. Through this wide set of contexts, Place making and Policies for Competitive Cities contributes to the debate about the development of creative knowledge cities, their economic growth and competitiveness, and advocates the development of context sensitive, tailored approaches. Chapter authors from the 13 European cities rigorously evaluate, reformulate, and test assumptions behind old and new policies. This solidly grounded and policy focused study on the urban policy of place making highlights practices for different contexts in managing knowledge intensive cities and by drawing on the varied experiences from across Europe, it establishes the state of the art for both academic and policy debates in a fast moving field.

Dimensions of Evaluation Urban Dahllöf, 1991. This book addresses primary issues in evaluation in an international, a national, and a long term perspective. The essays demonstrate that arguments about the nature and techniques of evaluation must entail far broader considerations than those often promoted by policy makers.

The Government and Politics of Ontario Graham White, 1997-01-01. This textbook is the standard authority on the government and politics of Ontario. Extensively revised and updated to reflect the early Harris era, this edition also features a new section on change and continuity in the Ontario political system.

Innovation Systems and Capabilities in Developing Regions Willie Siyanbola, Olumuyiwa Olamade, 2016-05-23 In today's knowledge driven world innovation and innovation systems have become key policy issues However the extent of knowledge that is available on these concepts in less developed countries is still relatively low Much of what we know about innovation theory and systems has come from the developed countries and reflects their world view This apparent knowledge deficit has major implications for less developed countries Innovation Systems and Capabilities in Developing Regions adds to the growing body of knowledge on developing countries The theoretical and empirical case studies presented here advance the notion that while developing countries may not engage in frontier research a critical knowledge base upon which these countries compete for global markets is emerging There is evidence that state and non state actors are increasingly emphasising policies that sit within the framework of national innovation systems This book illuminates this shift in policy competence at national levels The contributions in this volume highlight the need for thorough understanding of the role of diffusion based innovation linked to technology transfer and acquisition They also provide empirical evidence on the drivers dynamics and impact of such innovation in developing economies and the constraints that apply Contributors also document the application of the innovation system approach in developing countries as well as the build up and diffusion of technological capabilities within innovation systems Academics higher level students policy makers and practitioners involved with innovation and the economics of technical change particularly in developing countries will find this a valuable book

The Palgrave Encyclopedia of Urban and Regional Futures Robert C. Brears, 2023-01-13 While urban settlements are the drivers of the global economy and centres of learning culture and innovation and nations rely on competitive dynamic regions for their economic social and environmental objectives urban centres and regions face a myriad of challenges that impact the ways in which people live and work create wealth and interact and connect with places Rapid urbanisation is resulting in urban sprawl rising emissions urban poverty and high unemployment rates housing affordability issues lack of urban investment low urban financial and governance capacities rising inequality and urban crimes environmental degradation increasing vulnerability to natural disasters and so forth At the regional level low employment low wage growth scarce financial resources climate change waste and pollution and rising urban peri urban competition etc are impacting the ability of regions to meet socio economic development goals while protecting biodiversity The response to these challenges has typically been the application of inadequate or piecemeal solutions often as a result of fragmented decision making and competing priorities with numerous economic environmental and social consequences In response there is a growing movement towards viewing cities and regions as complex and sociotechnical in nature with people and communities interacting with one another and with objects such as roads buildings transport links etc within a range of urban and regional settings or contexts This comprehensive MRW will provide readers with expert interdisciplinary knowledge on how urban centres and regions in locations of varying climates lifestyles income levels and stages development are creating synergies and reducing trade offs in the development of resilient resource efficient environmentally friendly liveable socially equitable integrated and technology enabled centres and regions

Exporting Urban Korea? Se Hoon Park, Hyun Bang Shin, Hyun Soo Kang, 2020-12-23 A detailed examination of the Korean development model from its urban dimension evaluating its sociopolitical contexts and implications for international development cooperation There is an increasing tendency to use the development experience of Asian countries as a reference point for other countries in the Global South Korea's condensed urbanization and industrialization accompanied by the expansion of new cities and industrial complexes across the country have become one such model even if the fruits of such development may not have been equitably shared across geographies and generations The chapters in this book critically reassess the Korean urban development experience from regional policy to new town development demonstrating how these policy experiences were deeply rooted in Korea's socioeconomic environment and discussing what can be learned from them when applying them in other developmental contexts This book will be of great interest to scholars and researchers in the field of urban studies and developmental studies in general and in Korea's urban development experience in particular Chapters 1 2 4 and 12 of this book are freely available as downloadable Open Access PDFs at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license
