Divided into four sections, the Handbook focuses on theorizing European integration, the EU as polity, politics and policy making in the EU and the EU and the international system. Its appeal will reside not only in its comprehensive and authoritative coverage of the field but also in the quality of its contributors and the diversity of theoretical and methodological approaches included. The resulting volume is a must-have for all scholars and advanced students of the EU and European integration.

In the Shadow of the Capitol Dome Brian Boggs, 2024-08-01. The Tenth Amendment of the United States Constitution places education firmly under the purview of the states. As such, and from the time the first public education system was conceived in the United States, there have been endless battles under the domes of state capitals everywhere to create, control and reform educational policy. However, despite the prominent role that states and their legislatures have as central actors in forming educational policy, very few policy actors and even fewer academics have been able to pierce the veil of policymaking at the state level. This case study addresses that gap by examining how one particular educational policy, The Michigan Public Education Finance Act, was created, lived, died and was resurrected in the State of Michigan. Through the exploration of this policy, there is a particular focus on the use of critical legal theory to examine hidden power structures embedded in the legislative legal system and apply this often overlooked critical approach to education policy research. Readers will come to understand what educational policymaking looks like at the state level and how to engage their voice in the process. With the increasing political nature of education policy and the fight to control it in the halls of local state capitals, educators as well as the public need to know how to access the political system and have their voice heard. However, it can also appear to be impenetrable to an outsider. This book will demystify the policy making process.

Collective Intelligence in Open Policymaking Rafał Olszowski, 2024-05-29. The book develops an analytical framework based on qualitative research which is applied to the analysis of different projects in selected case studies such as Decide Madrid, Better Reykjavik, Loomio, Deliberatorium, Civic Budget of the City of Kraków. The book is structured into four chapters addressing essential questions in the field 1 Opening Policymaking 2 Beyond the Individual Understanding the Evolution of Collective Intelligence 3 A Review of the Projects Using Collective Intelligence in Policymaking 4 Online Public Debate How Can We Make it More Intelligent The book will appeal to students scholars and researchers of political science public policy and public administration as well as policymakers interested in a better understanding of collective intelligence and open policymaking

Business Lobbying in the European Union David Coen, Alexander Katsaitis, Matia Vannoni, 2021-02-16 At a time when Europe and business stand at crossroads this study provides a perspective into how business representation in the EU has evolved and valuable insights into how to organize lobbying strategies and influence policy making. Uniquely, the authors analyze business lobbying in Brussels by drawing on insights from political science, public management, and business studies. At the macro level, we explore over 30 years of increasing business lobbying and explore the emergence of a distinct European business-government relations style. At the meso level, we assess how the role of EU institutions, policy types, and the policy cycle shape the density and diversity of business lobbying activity. Finally, at the micro level, we seek to explore how firms organize their political affairs functions and mobilized strategic political responses. The study uses a variety of methods to analyze the business-government relations, drawing on unique business and policy maker surveys, in-depth case studies, and elite interviews. Large statistical analysis of lobbying registers to assess density and diversity across policy areas and EU institutions and managerial career path and organizational analysis to assess corporate political capabilities. In contributing to discussions on corporate political strategy and interest groups activity, this monograph should be of interest to public policy scholars, policy makers, and businesses managers seeking to understand EU government affairs and political representation.
