Elites and Arab Politics Ian Kelly, 2020-06-11 This work explains elite behaviour in authoritarian systems and proposes why elites withdraw their support for the incumbent when faced with popular uprisings Building upon foundations drawn from institutional authoritarianism and synthesised with local context from the substantial scholarship on the Middle East and North Africa the book argues that the elite supporting autocrats come from three distinct cadres the military the single party and the personalist Each of these cadres possesses its own distinct institutional interests and preferences towards regime change Drawing on these interests the study constructs a theoretical framework that is assessed through testing it against three variables Utilising an analytic narrative the research finds that the withdrawal of elite support is the consequence of long term processes that see distinct cadres marginalised First increased incumbent preference for personalist elements destabilises regimes as the military and single party cadres reconsider their positions Second neoliberal economic policies implemented via structural adjustment accelerated this personalisation as the state s withdrawal from the economy This in turn affected the ability of the military and single party elites to access patronage Finally the degree of military involvement in the formal political sphere contributes to shaping the nature of the system that replaced the incumbent regime under examination Building upon a wide range of literature the book argues that interest realisation determines whether or not elite actors support regime change in authoritarian systems The volume will be of interest to scholars researching politics social sciences and the Middle East

State, Society, and Military Elites in the Middle East Gabriel Ben-Dor, 1984

Armed Organizations and Political Elites in Civil Wars Erwin van Veen, 2024-06-03 This book analyses under what conditions and with what developmental effects armed organizations shift their coercive profile during civil wars with a focus on the recent conflicts in Syria and Iraq. The work begins with an operationalisation of the term political settlement focusing on how power is organized in fragile and conflict affected countries and then uses this operationalization to analyse the political settlements of contemporary Syria and Iraq including their breakdown and transformation during recent civil wars of 2011 today in Syria and 2014-17 in Iraq. It subsequently examines why and how elite factions have used armed organizations in times of conflict. This approach links an understanding of the broad evolution of power relations at the national level with the specific effects of the use of armed organizations on such relations. It argues for a shift from assigning fixed labels to armed organizations during civil wars to studying their coercive profile in a dynamic fashion i.e. how armed organizations behave in terms of their use of threats and coercive force. The book introduces five profiles of coercive behaviour that demonstrate how the same organization can behave very differently at various points in time. One of these, the hybrid coercive profile, fills a gap in the existing civil war typology of organized armed violence by opening up the possibility of elite factions deliberately combining collaborative and competitive modes of behaviour. As an evidence base, the book provides in-depth analysis of the origins, evolution, and operations of four armed organizations that have acted under a hybrid coercive profile during the Syrian and Iraqi civil wars: the Syrian Kurdish People's Defence Forces, the Eagles of the Whirlwind of the Syrian Social Nationalist Party, the Iraqi Kurdish Peshmerga, and the Badr Organization. By connecting the concepts of political settlement and civil war and applying them to specific armed organizations operating in Syria and Iraq, the book offers new insights into this nexus. This book will be of much interest to students of civil wars, conflict studies, Middle Eastern Studies, and International Relations.

Political Elite of Iran Marvin Zonis, 2015-03-08. In interviews with 170 politically active Iranians, the author reveals that politics in Iran are based on interpersonal relationships marked by insecurity, cynicism, and mistrust. He then assesses the significance of these characteristics for Iran's future development. Originally published in 1971, The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print-on-demand technology to again make available previously out-of-print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press. These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions. The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905.

Political Elites in Arab North Africa I. William Zartman, 1982. Elites in the Middle East I. William Zartman, 1980. Arab Elites Volker Perthes, 2004. The recent deaths of four long-term heads of state in the Arab world heralded important changes as political power passed from one generation to the next. Shedding light on these changes, Arab Elites explores the attitudes and political agendas of the new leadership emerging throughout the region. A strong analytical framework informs the author's discussion of elites in Algeria, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, the Palestinian National Authority, Saudi Arabia, Syria, and Tunisia. The result is a portrait of the current state and likely future of politics in the Arab Middle East

Government and Politics of the Contemporary Middle East Tareq Y. Ismael, Jacqueline S. Power, Islam, and Political Elite in Iran Eva Rakel, 2008-11-30 The Iranian Islamic revolution brought about a political system based on a combination of state institutions that derive their legitimacy from Islamic law and republican institutions legitimized by the people As there are no legal political parties in the Islamic Republic of Iran political factions represent the varying ideological and material interests of members of the political elite and their supporters This book analyzes the rivalries between the political factions and their related state institutions and the impact of the dynamics of factionalism on domestic economic and socio cultural and foreign policy formulation It shows that tensions inherent to the structure of state institutions and factional rivalries slow down the process of democratization and economic reforms in the Islamic Republic of Iran

Politics and Change in the Middle East Roy Anderson, Robert Seibert, Jon Wagner, 2020-08-17 A longtime bestseller Politics and Change in the Middle East employs a multidisciplinary approach to comprehensively and evenhandedly study the region s past present and future Through politics economics culture and history this text offers a rugged analytical framework that familiarizes students with the Middle East and helps them to critically evaluate contemporary developments Thematically organized Politics and Change in the Middle East introduces students to the primary actors and issues that define the region and its role in world politics

Political Succession in the Arab World Anthony Billingsley, 2009-12-16 Political succession is a key issue in the contemporary Middle East In this new study the author examines the process and shows how respect for those in authority and tribal codes of loyalty have been far more influential in maintaining regimes than security institutions and political repression The Arab world is faced by political turmoil and demands for reform Many of the problems of the region are attributed to the form of leadership that dominates the area leadership that is authoritarian and focused on regime survival rather than political change The book highlights the ways in which family loyalties pervade political economic and social life and how constitutions are being used to consolidate the power of ruling families in republics and monarchies The volume explores the notion that the region s rulers monarchic and republican are inclined to pass their power on to their sons and evaluates the use they make of family and tribal networks to maintain their power The work sees to demonstrate that despite economic and social problems Arabs value stability and prefer an authoritarian family based regime than government run by Islamist groups Providing new insights into the influences on political succession in the Middle East this work will be of great interests to scholars of Middle East studies history and international relations Elites and People
