

"The Church of Today and the Hope of Tomorrow"

This is how John Paul II referred to our young people but I believe it equally applies to each of us today. We are faced with the challenge of proclaiming the faith in a culture that has been distracted by wealth and materialism. This has resulted in falling church attendance and a dramatic fall in the number of vocations to the priesthood. Coupled with this the pace of life has increased, with often both parents having to work reducing the amount of time available to us to serve the church in a voluntary role. We thank God for those who are able to assist and have taken on a growing burden but this cannot be sustained in the longer term. I believe we need a Church where everyone plays their part without that becoming a burden too great to carry.

I am a strong believer in the importance of the local community. That is where we should work and serve the Lord if we can. But a local community does not require it to be a Parish or indeed have a church. We already have local communities at Downton, Alderbury and Wardour which are a part of larger parishes and at present have the added benefit of a meeting place. We also have a community at Wilton. They have lost their church but we try to maintain their identity and they in turn keep in touch with each other.

But the problem of maintaining three separate parishes within the City of Salisbury is that we cannot provide each parish with Mass at the time they desire; we need at least two priests to maintain the current masses and if the number of priests falls to one in the future we will not be able to provide Sunday mass for everyone. Our churches are not large enough to fit us all into three masses.

In the meantime our priests are run ragged trying to administer the separate parishes with their separate Finance Committees, required by Canon Law, their separate Pastoral Councils and the upkeep of the different groupings of buildings. This coupled with the problem of finding lay volunteers with the time to take over these responsibilities means we must look at other ways of working for the future.

We could continue as we are but paying lay people to take on the administrative functions of our parishes, releasing our Priests to exercise the pastoral care and administer the sacraments. To do this effectively would probably require us all to covenant 10% of our income to the church to pay for this. Alternatively we could commit ourselves to working as a team with our clergy and reduce the administrative burden by becoming one parish with one Finance Committee and one Pastoral Council, releasing the rest of our people to work in the mission of the church, providing pastoral care and support to both those within and outside our church community. The church buildings should be there to facilitate our worship and provide the opportunity for catechesis and pastoral care. They should not become the prime focus of all our efforts disabling us from our primary mission.

Change requires wisdom, imagination and courage. It will also require considerable prayer, understanding, compassion and love if we are to realise a new vision which unites our people, empowering them to re-engage with the mission of the church which is their calling through baptism. I hope we are not here in our time to be defeatist and minister to a dying church but rather to engage under the guidance of the Holy Spirit to breath new life into our communities; to build a solid foundation for the future in a changing world.
