Music Listening in the 19th and 20th Centuries Christian Thorau, Hansjakob Ziemer, 2019 An idealized image of European concert goers has long prevailed in historical overviews of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries This act of listening was considered to be an invisible and amorphous phenomenon a naturally given mode of perception This narrative influenced the conditions of listening from the selection of repertoire to the construction of concert halls and programmes However as listening moved from the concert hall to the opera house street music and jazz venues new and visceral listening traditions evolved In turn the art of listening was shaped by phenomena of the modern era including media innovation and commercialization This Handbook asks whether how and why practices of music listening changed as the audience moved from pleasure gardens and concert venues in the eighteenth century to living rooms in the twentieth century and mobile devices in the twenty first Through these questions chapters enable a differently conceived history of listening and offer an agenda for future research      The Palgrave Handbook of Sound Design and Music in Screen Media Liz

Greene, Danijela Kulezic-Wilson, 2016-12-14 This book bridges the existing gap between film sound and film music studies by bringing together scholars from both disciplines who challenge the constraints of their subject areas by thinking about integrated approaches to the soundtrack As the boundaries between scoring and sound design in contemporary cinema have become increasingly blurred both film music and film sound studies have responded by expanding their range of topics and the scope of their analysis beyond those traditionally addressed The running theme of the book is the disintegration of boundaries which permeates discussions about industry labour technology aesthetics and audiovisual spectatorship The collaborative nature of screen media is addressed not only in scholarly chapters but also through interviews with key practitioners that include sound recordists sound designers composers orchestrators and music supervisors who honed their skills on films TV programmes video games commercials and music videos      Catalog of Copyright Entries Library of
