The Victorian Country House Michael Hall, 2009 The English country house reached its apotheosis in the nineteenth century Designed by the most eminent architects of the age the houses were bigger more elaborate and more lavishly furnished than ever before becoming a byword throughout the world for luxury technological innovation and convenience of plan Michael Hall's new survey draws on the Country Life archive to present the most complete visual record yet published of the Victorian country house Chronologically arranged to span the decades from the 1830s to the 1890s the houses range from the High Gothic of Tyntesfield to Ferdinand Rothschild's flamboyantly French Waddesdon Manor and Philip Webb's Arts and Crafts interiors at Standen Victorian houses have suffered more from sales and demolitions than houses from any other period The Country Life images are the only record of great houses such as Wrest Park Thoresby Hall and Hewell Grange in their heyday Houses that have survived with their interiors intact but are little known to the public are also featured such as Flintham Hall and the Earl of Harrowby's Sandon Hall Here too are spectacular colour photographs of some of the most celebrated houses of the period from A W N Pugin's Scarisbrick Hall to J D Crace's astonishing interiors at Longleat With over 150 superb photographs and a commentary by one of the world's leading authorities on the subject this book provides an excellent overview of a major period in British architectural history Michael Hall is an architectural historian and the Editor of Apollo magazine A former Architectural Editor and Deputy Editor of Country Life he is a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries a trustee of Emery Walker's Arts and Crafts house and Chairman of the Victorian Society's activities committee His books include The English Country House From the Archives of Country Life also published by Aurum

Chopin in Britain Peter Willis, 2017-12-14 In 1848 the penultimate year of his life Chopin visited England and Scotland at the instigation of his aristocratic Scots pupil Jane Stirling In the autumn of that year he returned to Paris The following autumn he was dead Despite the fascination the composer continues to hold for scholars this brief but important period and his previous visit to London in 1837 remain little known In this richly illustrated study Peter Willis draws on extensive original documentary evidence as well as cultural artefacts to tell the story of these two visits and to place them into aristocratic and artistic life in mid nineteenth century England and Scotland In addition to filling a significant hole in our knowledge of the composer's life

the book adds to our understanding of a number of important figures including Jane Stirling and the painter Ary Scheffer The social and artistic milieu of London Manchester Glasgow and Edinburgh are brought to vivid life How the Country House Became English Stephanie Barczewski, 2023-07-22 The story of how the country house historically a site of violent disruption came to symbolize English stability during the eighteenth century Country houses are quintessentially English not only architecturally but also in that they embody national values of continuity and insularity The English country house however has more often been the site of violent disruption than continuous peace So how is it that the country house came to represent an uncomplicated nostalgic vision of English history This book explores the evolution of the country house beginning with the Reformation and Civil War and shows how the political events of the eighteenth century which culminated in the reaction against the French Revolution led to country houses being recast as symbols of England's political stability

JACKET Architect Royal Hubert Fenwick, 1970 Nature Displaced, Nature Displayed Nuala C. Johnson, 2011-04-29 Botanical gardens brought together in a single space the great diversity of the earth's flora. They displaced nature from forest and foothill and rearranged it to reveal something of the scientific principles underpinning the apparent chaos of the wild.
Nature Displaced, Nature Displayed shows how the design and display of such gardens was not determined by scientific principles alone. Through a study of three botanical gardens belonging to the University of Cambridge, the Royal Dublin Society and the Belfast Natural History Society, the author shows how the final outcome involved a complex interplay of ideas about place, identity, empire, botanical science and especially aesthetics, creating spaces that would educate the mind as well as please the senses. This highly engaging book offers a wealth of fresh insights into both the history and development of botanical gardens as well as connections between science and aesthetics.
