Affect Theory and Comparative Education Discourse Irving Epstein, 2019-07-11 What does educational policy making and institutional practice entail in an era of globalization Global interactions challenge conventional assumptions governing the certainty of geographical boundedness simplistic notions of citizenship and identity fixed notions of time space and movement and clear distinctions between economic modes of production and consumption Irving Epstein argues that conventional educational institutions and the policies that support them tend to ignore such anxiety by affirming a belief in educational modernism to the exclusion of other possibilities What is missing in most of these analyses is an appreciation for the role of affect in determining how our encounters with these practices become significant and how our efforts to find meaning in those policies and practices lead to their acceptance or rejection This book is the first application of affect theory to comparative education themes and shows how it can help to form a more robust discussion of the policy making process and the popular reactions to it After discussing the key concepts associated with affect theory he presents a total of six case studies Three of the cases depict relationships between educational cultural and social organizations whose purposes conflict with one another but whose presence is indicative of a loss of faith in the efficacy of public schooling Three of the cases are illustrative of an even greater systematic rejection of educational institutional aim and purpose

Critical Analyses of Educational Reforms in an Era of Transnational Governance Elisabeth Hultqvist, Sverker Lindblad, Thomas S. Popkewitz, 2017-10-20 This book represents a set of critical analyses of educational reforms where issues of transnational governance are of vital concern. It focuses on different aspects of and practices in educational reform making and in particular on governing techniques and the working of new agencies such as supranational and multinational organizations. In addition, the book examines contemporary issues of immigration, immigrants in the politics of schooling, by reflecting on matters of migration and problematizing how concepts such as exclusion and abjection make the migrants appear failed, insufficient and even dangerous. The book provides theoretical insights into critical relations between knowledge and power, governance and governmentality and notions concerning educational systems as well as how these are compared. The central themes of the book are models for organizing and reflecting on transnationalization and educational reforms. In its discussion of those themes, the focus lies on changing conceptions of education and the educational system on how school or teacher education is adapting to discourses of effectiveness and efficiency and on their transformation according to standardized templates. Such changing conceptions define the meanings of education and educational progress; they are important for the identification and analysis of educational knowledge and for critical discourses on education in society.

Skill Formation Regimes in South Asia Markus Maurer, 2011 In the face of accelerated economic globalisation, many of the industries in economically less developed countries have become more technology intensive. Skill formation processes both inside and outside firms are therefore changing. This study scrutinises such transformations by comparing, from the perspective of historical institutionalism, the skill formation regimes of the garment industries in Sri Lanka and Bangladesh. It sheds light on the differences between the trajectories of the in firm skill formation regimes of the two countries and reveals the important part that varying paths of educational development in both countries have played in shaping these trajectories At the same time the study shows how in both countries state led skill formation regimes have been transformed not only by market forces and the growing importance of corporate business interests but also by the social demand for educational credentials
