Regional Economic Development and Policy David Pinder, 2017-09-05 Originally published in 1983 when Europe's economies were facing the worst recession since the 1930s this book reviews the outcome of a quarter of a century of research and practical experience in the field of regional economic management In the spatial context of the European Community the author explores central issues by integrating the results of his own research with those of economists geographers economic historians and psychologists It provides a wide survey of the subject demonstrates the complexity of the spatial economic systems which the regional economic planner seeks to modify analyses the strategies for regional development employed by national and international agencies and offers a substantial annotated bibliography Contradictions arising from the contrasting spatial perspectives of national governments and the European Commission are emphasised Among other things it concludes that many regional problems strongly reflect perception and behavioural factors as well as purely economic constraints Government Measures for the Promotion of Regional Economic Development International Information Centre for Local Credit, 2014-10-05 The International Information Centre for Local Credit with the assistance of member banks carries out investigations in different countries and publishes the results The present study relates to the problem of the unequal economic social and cultural development of different areas in the world Particularly since the second world war this problem has been recognized as being of major importance While initially it was the differences in development between different countries which attracted almost all the attention for a number of years now an increasing interest has been apparent in the differences in level of development between specific regions in individual countries This growing realization of the problem with regard to the varying levels of development which could exist within one and the same country found expression for instance in the International Union of Local Authorities congress held at Tel Aviv in 1961 which was devoted to the task of local authorities in development areas The increasing interest in these problems was also evidenced in other quarters the Conference for Regional Economy of the European Economic Community being held in Brussels in the same year From these conferences and also from many other indications as well it became clear that the problem of regional economic development today stands high on the priority list of questions of policy for many governments and that in general there is a great need for information on how the problem is being tackled in other countries

Impact analysis of economic policy is a subject which is gaining in creasing interest in both theoretical and applied economic research Two main reasons for the growing interest can be distinguished First the situation of the government s finances is making it more than ever necessary to assess critically the effects of the instruments used to pursue public policy goals Secondly because of the economic stagnation government will be increasingly appealed to for support Impact analysis however is hampered by three major problems methodological deficiencies lack of econometric approaches which have been adapted to the specific conditions of this kind of analysis and data availability The present book deals with these problems in the context of regional economic policy However the main findings are broadly applicable in various other fields This book is primarily oriented towards those who have a practical interest Therefore attention is mostly paid to the practical aspects of the methodology and the measurements methods Furthermore the methodologi cal and econometric parts are supplemented by two extensive case studies Three people have contributed constructive criticisms and suggestions on some chapters of the book Peter Nijkamp Theo Dijkstra and Manfred Fischer I am very grateful for their support They of course share no blame for any deficiencies in the present form of the book I also gratefully acknowledge the assistance of Harry Barkema and Marja Schuring with the computations
