International Human Right to Conscientious Objection to Military Service and Individual Duties to Disobey Manifestly Illegal Orders

Hitomi Takemura, 2008-12-14. International human rights law grants individuals both rights and responsibilities. In this respect, international criminal and international humanitarian law are no different. As members of the public international law family, they are charged with the regulation, maintenance and protection of human dignity. The right and duty to disobey manifestly illegal orders traverses these three schools of public international law. This book is the first systematic study of the right to conscientious objection under international human rights law. Understanding that rights and duties are not mutually exclusive but complementary, this study analyses the right to conscientious objection and the duties of individuals under international law from various perspectives of public international law.

The International Human Right to Freedom of Conscience

Leonard Hammer, 2018-01-18. This title was first published in 2002. This text addresses the problem of conflict that arises between the human right to freedom of religion and the human right to freedom of belief. For example, certain religious beliefs are in conflict with certain women's rights. The principal goal of this book is to distinguish between the more formalized and recognized notion of protecting religious beliefs from what is referred to as conscientious beliefs, a belief external to a religious context.

This second edition has been thoroughly revised and updated to take account of recent jurisprudence on the Human Rights Committee.
