Women Artists of the Twentieth Century Jules Heller, Nancy G. Heller, 2013-12-19 First Published in 1997 North American Women Artists of the Twentieth Century A Biographical Dictionary was created to fill a gap of there being a comprehensive reference work like this available even though the bibliography in English on various aspects of the history of women artists has grown exponentially during the past ten years As researchers the editors have been frustrated many times by being unable to locate basic information about many of the artists included in this volume especially those working outside the United States This leads directly to another reason for producing this particular kind of reference book to try and create a better understanding between and among the artists and art audiences in these countries In Focus: Serving the Pacific

landscape representation is emerging among contemporary Indigenous artists from North America For centuries landscape painting in European art typically used representational strategies such as single point perspective to lure viewers and settlers into the territories of the old and new worlds In the twentieth century abstract expressionism transformed painting to encompass something beyond the visual world and later minimalism and the Land Art movement broadened the genre of landscape art to include sculptural forms and site specific installations In Shifting Grounds art historian Kate Morris argues that Indigenous artists are expanding and reconceptualizing the forms of the genre expressing Indigenous attitudes toward land and belonging even as they draw upon mainstream art practices The resulting works evoke all five senses from the overt sensuality of Kay WalkingStick's tactile paintings to the eerie soundscapes of Alan Michelson's videos to the immersive environments of Kent Monkman's dioramas this art resonates with a fully embodied and embedded subjectivity Shifting Grounds explores themes of presence and absence survival and vulnerability memory and commemoration and power and resistance illuminating the artists engagement not only with land and landscape but also with the history of representation itself

International Law, Museums and the Return of Cultural Objects Ana Filipa Vrdoljak, 2006-07-13 While the question of the return of cultural objects is by no means a new one it has become the subject of increasingly intense debate in recent years This important book explores the removal and the return of cultural objects from occupied communities during the last two centuries and analyses the concurrent evolution of international cultural heritage law The book focuses on the significant influence exerted by British U S and Australian governments and museums on international law and museum policy in response to restitution claims It shows that these claims far from heralding the long feared dissolution of museums and their collections provide museums with a vital new role in the process of self determination and cultural identity Compelling and thought provoking throughout this book is essential reading for archaeologists international lawyers and all those involved in cultural resource management
