In February 2014 an international seminar on musical dynamics and creativity in Africa was held at Tor Vergata University of Rome The topic and the approach were strongly influenced by issues that Gerhard Kubik believed should have been addressed for a long time such as the attention to cultural and social dynamics with a specific emphasis on the creativity of individuals

Beside his keynote address Music Traditions Change and Creativity in Africa includes the contributions presented by scholars from different countries particularly active in the East African area and in dialogue with Italian researchers who have field experience in the same region

Music Traditions Change and Creativity in Africa is the first monograph of a series of volumes connected and inspired to the journal Etnografie Sonore Sound Ethnographies www.soundethnographies.it which Giorgio Adamo and his colleagues recently founded Along with the papers multimedia contents are also available online

Recordings are now the primary way we hear classical music especially the more abstract styles of absolute instrumental music In this original provocative book Arved Ashby argues that recording technology has transformed our understanding of art music Contesting the laments of nostalgic critics Ashby sees recordings as socially progressive and instruments of a musical vernacular but also finds that recording and absolute music actually involve similar notions of removing sound from context He takes stock of technology's impact on classical music addressing the questions at the heart of the issue This erudite yet concise study reveals how mechanical reproduction has transformed classical musical culture and the very act of listening breaking down aesthetic and generational barriers and mixing classical music into the soundtrack of everyday life
