Fighting, Loving, Teaching Emily A. Daniels, 2013-02-11 Despite challenges and continuing inequalities surrounding urban education there are instances which provide a counter narrative to the dominant discourses of failure Urban educators who engage conscious caring and armed love in their practice are an example of this This qualitative instrumental case study examines the practices of two transformative urban educators around caring and armed love in their classroom praxis This study examines their conceptions and practice of these approaches through interview field notes and video data The findings involve manifestations of both caring and armed love including connection nurturance through food community directness relationships honesty respect and demand as well as high expectations Despite the challenges that surrounded this school the atmosphere of caring and armed love acted like a protective barrier or space of safety for the students My conclusion points to the vital significance of re humanizing our educational discourse in favor of the genuine care and connections that exist in urban settings and the importance of re centering our discussion to focus on the human aspects of education which lie at the core of our profession Firmly anchored in a critical educational tradition of struggle Fighting Loving Teaching reawakens teachers to educational justice and the everyday possibilities of a pedagogy of the heart With uncompromising passion and commitment this timely book weaves a narrative of critical persistence and radical hope in an effort to reinsert the revolutionary power of love into current discourses of democratic schooling and society Antonia Darder Leavey Endowed Chair of Ethics and Moral Leadership Loyola Marymount University Los Angeles Author of Reinventing Paulo Freire A Pedagogy of Love

The Student Guide to Freire's 'Pedagogy of the Oppressed' Antonia Darder, 2024-02-22 Now in its 2nd edition this book serves as companion to Freire's seminal work supporting the application of his pedagogy in enacting emancipatory educational programs in the world today The new edition includes a new chapter called Teaching Pedagogy of the Oppressed with additional dialogue questions and activities designed to support students and instructors. It also includes an updated Bibliography and further reading list. Antonia Darder closely examines Freire's ideas as they are articulated in Pedagogy of the Oppressed, beginning with a historical discussion of his life and a systematic discussion of the central philosophical traditions that informed his revolutionary ideas. Darder explores Freire's fundamental themes and ideas, including issues of humanization, teacher-student relationship, reflection, dialogue, praxis, and his larger emancipatory vision. The book also includes a chapter-by-chapter close reading of the text with sample questions to prompt discussion and engagement with Freire's ideas, as well as a new interview with Freire's widow, Ana Maria Araújo Freire, and a preface by Donaldo Macedo.

Living the work Azadeh F. Osanloo, Christa Boske, 2015-10-07. Written as a collaborative between children, families, teachers, school leaders, scholars, and community organization representatives, this book has given everyone involved a platform to express his or her individual voice. Chapters center on authors' lived experiences, and the book is grounded in promoting social justice and equity.

Research Justice Andrew J. Jolivé, 2015-07-22. Research Justice RJ is a strategic framework and methodological intervention that seeks to transform structural inequities in research. Research Justice Methodologies for Social Change builds upon the methodological frameworks developed by the national non-profit organization DataCenter Research for Justice and is the first book to take a radical approach to socially just, community-centred research. Challenging traditional models for conducting social science research within marginalized populations, it examines the relationships and intersections between research, knowledge construction, and political power/legitimacy in society. Presenting a new and highly innovative concept of Collective Ceremonial Research Responsiveness, it envisions equal political power and legitimacy for different forms of knowledge, including the cultural, spiritual, and experiential. The book examines how the co-existence of these various forms of knowledge can lead to greater equality in public policies and laws that rely on data and research to produce social change. Offering a much-needed analysis of the intersections between Research Methods, Public Policy, Cultural Studies, Anthropology, and Sociology, this unique book will be of wide interest to researchers and students in a variety of disciplines.
