Sally Featherstone, 2013-06-20 Why is it that when children play some behave like butterflies flitting around among the flowers of the activities on offer landing for a moment before moving on to the next attractive flower activity while others behave with the single minded concentration of bees. As children grow and learn they acquire skills through play and practical activities. This recently acquired learning is tenuous and is secured through practice repeating the skills in different contexts with different people. Only then will learning be hard wired for life. It is now evident that where children are able to select resources play companions and activities for themselves they can practise emerging skills and concepts by selecting the resources they need and using them in ways which are unique to them. This book written by a group of experts in early years practice explores the place and purpose of child initiated learning in high quality early years practice. Child initiated learning is a key feature of the Early Years Foundation Stage. The First Five Years Philippa Kaye, 2015-07-06 Why do toddlers throw food on the floor again and again so that they can watch you pick it up. What's the best way to help a child learn to walk. When does a child understand the word no. Babies and toddlers are fascinating and changing all the time. Each month brings with it a breakthrough in new skills and abilities. Each chapter explores the developmental areas for each age band checklists for development and ways to stimulate these skills. There are suggested activities for each topic making this a truly practical book.
