Determining Self-Preservation Capability in Pre-School Children

Anca Taciuc, Anne S. Dederichs, 2014-05-12 This SpringerBrief explores the evacuation characteristics of children and their self preservation capability during fire situations An international survey among teachers from day care centers and experts in child development indicates an age limit at which pre school children may be considered capable of evacuating a location without direct intervention by an instructor The survey examines the ability of children to understand and follow simple instructions walk on horizontal surfaces without physical support and walk down stairs It also studies how fire safety installations and fire drills differ between countries A literature review and a presentation of the method applied are included This data can be applied to evacuation procedures building codes and fire regulations Determining Self Preservation Capability in Pre School Children is intended for practitioners as a tool for analyzing evacuation safety issues and developing methods removing potential hazards Researchers working in a related field will also find the book valuable

Surveillance of language development in pre-school children Johannes Fellingner, Daniel Holzinger, David Saldaña, 2022-12-16

Pre-School Education in the Arab World Huda Nashif, 2020-09-23 The organized play of the pre school child with a group of peers in an educational atmosphere is now recognised as an important element in child development The Arab states of the Gulf as indeed most of the emerging countries place special emphasis on the education of the young generation and are therefore particularly interested in the creation of pre school education This book first published in 1985 highlights the interplay in Kuwait of the traditional Islamic Arab approach to education with the more Western influenced ideas on the education of the pre school child

Vande-Guma, 2024-05-28

This edited volume investigates multiple perspectives of environmental meaning-making among children by evaluating preschool children's drawings on the environment. It critically traces the formation of early attitudes towards the environment before children's exposure to formal environmental education. Similarities and differences are explored among preschool children's drawings across diverse cultural and geographic backgrounds. Over five sections covering Morocco, Indonesia, Nigeria, Iraq, and Argentina, each one examines the factors affecting children's environmental drawings, such as age, gender, and geography. Using different theoretical frameworks, the chapters are written by researchers of environmental discourse and ecolinguistics with a background knowledge in environmental studies from a social science perspective. This book is of interest to researchers interested in ecolinguistics and socio-semiotics fields of study. This seminal book also paves the way for further research on preschool environmental education. Early Childhood Education,
