Travelling Concepts Christian Lammert, Katja Sarkowsky, 2009-12-03 Bhikhu Parekh As creative and reflective agents human beings seek meaning in their lives and develop more or less coherent views of the world or cultures in terms of which to organize their personal and collective lives When different groups of individuals within the same society subscribe to different ways of thought they face the crucial question of how to deal with their cultural diversity and sustain a shared common life Premodern societies took a relatively relaxed view of diversity and generally opted for a looser union Modernity brought with it a very different approach to the subject This is reflected in among other things the institution of the modern state especially the liberal democracy which represents one way of constituting it Liberal democracy has exercised a decisive influence on our political and moral imagination for the past three centuries Unlike premodern societies which took the community as their starting point and defined the individual in terms of it it takes the individual as the ultimate and irreducible unit of and thus conceptually and ontologically prior to society The latter is taken to consist of individuals and refers to the totality of its members and their formal and informal relationships Individual are the sole and equal sources of moral claims and social and political institutions are judged in terms of their ability to safeguard and promote individual interests

Keepers of the Code Robert Lecker, 2013-02-07 Keepers of the Code explores the complex network of associations and negotiations that influenced the development of literary anthologies in English Canada from 1837 to the present Lecker shows that these anthologies are deeply conflicted narratives that embody the tensions and anxieties felt by their editors when faced with the challenge of constructing or rejecting national ideals He argues that these are intensely self-conscious works with their own literary mechanisms and architecture In reading the history of these anthologies he witnesses a complex narrative of nation a compelling story about the values and interests informing English Canadian literary history

Telling Stories Jacqueline Bardolph, André Viola, Jean-Pierre Durix, 2001 The present volume is a highly comprehensive assessment of the postcolonial short story since the thirty six contributions cover most geographical areas concerned Another important feature is that it deals not only with exclusive practitioners of the genre Mansfield Munro but also with well known novelists Achebe Armah Atwood Carey Rushdie so that stimulating comparisons are suggested between shorter and longer works by the same authors In addition the volume is of interest for the study of aspects of orality dialect dance rhythms circularity and trickster figure for instance and of the more or less conflictual relationships between the individual character or implied author and the community Furthermore the marginalized status of women emerges as another major theme both as regards the past for white women settlers or the present for urbanized characters primarily in Africa and India The reader will also have the rare pleasure of discovering Janice Kulik Keefer's Fox her version of what she calls in her commentary displaced autobiography or creative non fiction Lastly an extensive bibliography on the postcolonial short story opens up further possibilities for research
