Dynamic Behavior of Predators and Prey in a Multihabitat System Angélique Dupuch, 2010-04 Understanding predator-prey interactions and particularly their reciprocal responses is a central topic in ecology Many studies have explored habitat use by both predators and prey and have shown that prey prefer the predator-poor habitats and predators the prey-rich ones However these studies mostly focused on the behaviour of predators and prey when the distribution of the other species was fixed in space Theoretical and empirical knowledge of predators and prey space use when both are allowed to move freely are scarce Within this framework this thesis focuses on both the antipredator behaviour and habitat selection by a prey species northern redbelly dace Phoxinus phoxinus when exposed to a predation risk varying in intensity in both space and time

Fish Physiology: Behaviour and Physiology of Fish Katherine A. Sloman, Sigal Balshine, Rod W. Wilson, 2005-12-13 Traditionally behaviour and physiology have been considered two separate fields of biology with the majority of available literature focusing on one or the other

Recently the need for a multidisciplinary approach to these topics has been realised highlighted by some of the sessions to be held at the 2003 annual meeting of the Society for Integrative and Comparative Biology such as regulation of behaviour and mechanisms of behaviour The proposed volume aims to bring together these disciplines in a comprehensive review of the available literature Fish Physiology Behaviour and Physiology of Fish will be novel in actively bridging these two areas of fish biology together and considering them as inextricably linked The progression of chapters focuses on different aspects of the life history of a fish from predator avoidance through to reproduction each written by scientists currently bridging the gap between behaviour and physiology in their own specialised subdiscipline Multidisciplinary and integrative research in fish biology Written by internationally recognized researchers Encompasses the whole life span of fish A wide variety of inter related topics presented in a cohesive format
